Development According To Parents Development According To Parents:

Development According to Parents W. Andrews Collins, Jacqueline J. Goodnow, 2014-01-02 To their everyday life with children parents bring a number of ideas about development and about parenting Some of these ideas are about their own children and about themselves as parents Others are more general ideas for instance about what babies are like how children change with age what kinds of affection and control they need the responsibilities of mothers and fathers or the degree of influence each parent has over the way a child develops Moreover the ideas that parents hold shape their actions with children and the way they assess both their children and their own performance as parents With the recognition of parental thinking as a powerful factor in family life research has turned to the study of this everyday or informal psychology Some of the studies deal with the nature of parents ideas What ideas are held Which are most widely shared How do these ideas differ from one another Some deal with the sources of parents ideas with the factors that give rise to differences among parents from different backgrounds different cultures different economic groups different degrees of experience with children Others concentrate on the consequences of parents ideas for themselves and for children This monograph summarizes the research with an eye to several audiences researchers clinicians educators and with an emphasis on the questions that remain A major goal is to point not only to significant gaps but also to some specific ways in which they might be addressed by further research

Parenting Beliefs, Behaviors, and Parent-Child Relations Kenneth H. Rubin, Ock Boon Chung, 2013-09-05 The purpose of this book is to present a rather simple argument Parents thoughts about childrearing and the ways in which they interact with children to achieve particular parenting or developmental goals are culturally determined Within any culture children are shaped by the physical and social settings within which they live culturally regulated customs and childrearing practices and culturally based belief systems The psychological meaning attributed to any given social behavior is in large part a function of the ecological niche within which it is produced Clearly it is the case that there are some cultural universals All parents want their children to be healthy and to feel secure However healthy and unhealthy at least in the psychological sense of the term can have different meanings from culture to culture

Handbook of Dynamics in Parent-Child Relations Leon Kuczynski, 2003 This handbook provides an interdisciplinary perspective on theory research and methodology on dynamic processes in parent child relations It focuses on cognitive behavioural and relational processes that govern immediate parent child interactions and long term relationships

Handbook of Adolescent Development Sandy Jackson, Luc Goossens, 2020-01-29 Handbook of Adolescent Development fills a gap in the literature on adolescent development and behaviour all of the authors of the various chapters were invited to include as many findings on European adolescents as possible Through this specific emphasis the handbook provides a complement to other reviews of the literature that are mostly based on North American samples The contributors are all eminent researchers in the field and the individual chapters cover their specific areas of expertise Theories of adolescence along with emotional physical and cognitive issues are explored Topics covered include families peer relations school and leisure time as well as problem areas such as depression drug consumption and delinquency Handbook of Adolescent Development also incorporates a comprehensive review of the literature in the area and considers avenues for future research This multidisciplinary text will be of interest to those studying and researching in the fields of developmental psychology sociology demography epidemiology and criminology

Parents' Beliefs About Children Scott A. Miller, 2019-11-29 One of the most important questions in psychology is how best to nurture children's development Parents' child rearing practices are a major contributor to how their children develop and parents' beliefs about children are a major contributor to how they treat their children This book synthesizes a large and diverse literature on what parents believe about children in general and their own children in particular Its scope is broad encompassing beliefs directed to numerous aspects of children's development in both the cognitive and social realms that span the age periods from birth through adolescence For each topic this book seeks to ask four crucial questions What is the nature of parents' beliefs What are the origins of parents' beliefs How do parents' beliefs relate to parents' behavior And how do parents' beliefs relate to children's development These questions tie into longstanding theoretical issues in psychology they are central to our understanding of both parenting practices and children's development and they speak to some of the most important pragmatic issues for which psychology can provide answers Parents' Beliefs About Children brings together a vast body of scholarship in a new way which makes the material accessible to both researchers in the field of child development and a more general readership

Key Concepts in Developmental Psychology H. Rudolph Schaffer, 2006-12-28 Perfect for courses in child development or developmental psychology and arranged thematically in sections corresponding to chapter headings usually found in textbooks this book is ideal for students wanting an accessible book to enrich their learning experience Key Features Provides an overview of the place of each concept in Developmental Psychology under three headings namely its meaning origins and current usage Concepts are grouped into sections corresponding to the main themes usually covered in teaching Relevant concepts in the book are emboldened and linked by listing at the end of each concept Guidance is provided to further reading on each of the concepts discussed The book will be centrally important to undergraduate students who need to learn the language used by developmental psychologists in describing their studies but will also help more advanced readers in checking their ideas regarding the nature and usage of particular concepts

Handbook of Applied Developmental Science Richard M. Lerner, Francine Jacobs, Donald Wertlieb, 2003 The Handbook of Applied Developmental Science is the only work to comprehensively present the latest theory research and application from applied developmental science ADS and the positive psychology movement It summarizes and synthesizes the best scientific knowledge from ADS to help readers understand the efforts being made around the world to ensure that all children and adolescents develop into healthy adults who contribute positively to society The Handbook is also the first resource to organize and integrate both the prevention and promotion

Parental Belief Systems Irving E. Sigel, Ann V. McGillicuddy-DeLisi, Jacqueline J Goodnow, 2014-02-25

Research on the topic of parent beliefs or parent cognition has increased tremendously since the original publication of this volume in 1985 For this revised second edition the editors sought to reflect some of the new directions that research on parent cognition has taken By offering a greater variety of topics it gives evidence of the intellectual concerns that now engage researchers in the field and testifies to the expanding scope of their interests Although a unique collection because it reflects the diversity that exists among major researchers in the field it evinces a common theme that the ideas parents have regarding their children and themselves as parents have an impact on their actions This emphasis on parents ideas shifts the focus on sources of family influence to ideas or beliefs as determinants of family interactions The implication of this way of thinking for practitioners is that it suggests the shift to ideas and thoughts from behavior and attitudes
