

REPLACEMENT OF TEACHERS BY COMPUTERS

STAND: I am against on the idea of replacing teachers with artificial intelligence or computers.

When we think of the term "teacher," the first thing that comes to mind is "educators." While the world is always evolving, so as the lifestyles and demands of each individual, we must not allow technology's impact to grow to the point where teachers are displaced by inventions. Computers, in my perspective, are ineffective at assisting students, and so should not be used in place of teachers. It is critical for teachers to share the same emotions as their students. There are certain tasks that only people are capable of performing in classrooms, that computers are incapable of performing. To summarize, computers cannot take the place of teachers. On the other hand, teachers can depend on the computer. As I previously stated, computers cannot substitute for instructors, but teachers may use computers in the classroom. Human teachers can make learning more enjoyable, and they can also be compassionate and empathetic.

DEMOCRACY AS THE BEST FORM OF GOVERNMENT

STAND: Democracy is actually the best form of government for a country.

Democracy is a form of government in which citizens select a country's policies through elected officials, direct voting, or a mix of the two. Additionally, people must be able to elect political groups and leaders in democratic elections based on who the majority wants to support. Finally, a democracy should allow for the participation of the majority of inhabitants in electoral institutions and not exclude particular people and groups from the political arena on the basis of their race, gender, class, or sexual orientation. A country with democracy develops a sense of involvement towards its citizen. It is essential in a way that the citizens know that they have the ability to take part in the country's decision making. A transparent government to its citizen is beneficial in terms of building trust, in able to maintain a balance governance. Thus, the people are in control on how they want the country and its leaders to be, in accordance with the citizens' needs and demands.

EDUCATION SHOULD BE A RIGHT RATHER THAN BEING A PRIVILEGE

STAND: Everyone has the rights to have an access to proper education without the basis of one's race, gender, or social status.

Children living in rural or underdeveloped areas are twice as probable to be out of educational institutions compared to students living in urban areas. Without a solid educational foundation, these youngsters are less likely to obtain sufficient
