

Chapter 15 Darwin's Theory of EvolutionComparing Adaptations of Birds*Introduction

When Charles Darwin explored the Galápagos Islands, he noted the great variety of beak shapes on the finches there. It was later determined that Darwin's finches made up 13 separate species. The similarities among the species suggested a common ancestor: A single species of finch that came from the mainland of South America. How did these birds evolve into genetically unique groups? With few native competitors and a wide variety of food sources, the newcomers were able to establish niches based on variations in beak shape and size. Finches with beaks that could exploit a particular food source—insects in the bark of trees, for example—established their own niche in the new habitat. Natural selection thus favored beak specialization because it enabled many birds to coexist within the same ecosystem. Many birds also show specialization of other body parts, including legs, feet, wings, and eyes. In this investigation, you will examine some bird characteristics. What are the survival benefits of each bird's adaptations?

Problem

What adaptations have evolved among modern birds that enable them to survive in diverse habitats?

Pre-Lab Discussion

Read the entire investigation. Then, work with a partner to answer the following questions.

1. What can you learn from observing and comparing specific physical traits of different birds?

2. What are some terms you can use to describe the size and shape of a bird's beak?

3. How does a bird's beak help you identify its habitat?

4. A certain bird ordinarily lives in or near water and spends much of its time swimming. Based on Data Table 1, what type of feet would you expect this bird to have?
