Caxton In Focus The Beginnings Of Printing In England:

Caxton in Focus Lotte Hellenga, 1982 Printing History and Cultural Change Richard Wendorf, 2022 This study provides one of the most detailed and comprehensive examinations ever devoted to a critical transformation in the material substance of the printed page it carries out this exploration in the history of the book moreover by embedding these typographical changes in the context of other cultural phenomena in eighteenth century Britain The gradual abandonment of pervasive capitalization italics and caps and small caps in books printed in London Dublin and the American colonies between 1740 and 1780 is mapped in five year increments which reveal that the appearance of the modern page in English began to emerge around 1765 This descriptive and analytical account focuses on poetry classical texts Shakespeare contemporary plays the novel the Bible the Book of Common Prayer sermons and religious writings newspapers magazines anthologies government publications and private correspondence it also examines the reading public canon formation editorial theory and practice and the role of typography in textual interpretation These changes in printing conventions are then compared to other aspects of cultural change the adoption of the Gregorian calendar in 1752 the publication of Johnson's Dictionary in 1755 the transformation of shop signs and the imposition of house numbers in London beginning in 1762 and the evolution of the English language and of English prose style This study concludes that this fundamental shift in printing conventions was closely tied to a pervasive interest in refinement regularity and standardization in the second half of the century and that it was therefore an important component in the self-conscious process of modernizing British culture publisher's website

How Invention Begins John H. Lienhard, 2006-07-14 In How Invention Begins Lienhard reconciles the ends of invention with the individual leaps upon which they are built illuminating the vast web of individual inspirations that lie behind whole technologies He traces for instance the way in which thousands of people applied their combined inventive genius to airplanes railroad engines and automobiles As he does so it becomes clear that a collective desire an upwelling of fascination a spirit of the times a Zeitgeist laid its hold upon inventors The thing they all sought to create was speed itself Likewise Lienhard shows that when we trace the astonishingly complex technology of printing books we come at last to that which we desire from books the knowledge the learning that they provide Can we speak of speed or education as inventions To do so he concludes is certainly no greater a stretch than it is to call radio or the telephone an invention Throughout this marvelous volume Lienhard illuminates these webs of insight or inspiration by weaving a fabric of anecdote history and technical detail all of which come together to provide a full and satisfying portrait of the true nature of invention A Companion to the Early Printed Book in Britain, 1476-1558 Vincent Gillespie, Susan Powell, 2014 First full scale guide to the origins and development of the early printed book and the issues associated with it The history of the book is now recognized as a field of central importance for understanding the cultural changes that swept through Tudor England This companion aims to provide a comprehensive guide to the issues relevant to the early printed book covering the significant cultural social and technological developments from 1476 the introduction of printing to England to 1558 the death of Mary Tudor Divided into thematic sections the printed booktrade the book as artefact patrons purchasers and producers and the cultural capital of print it considers the social historical and cultural context of the rise of print with the problems as well as advantages of the transmission from manuscript to print the printers of the period the significant Latin trade and its effect on the English market paper types bindings and woodcuts and other decorative features which create the packaged book and the main sponsors and consumers of the printed book merchants the lay clientele secular and religious clergy and the two Universities as well as secular colleges and chantries Further topics addressed include humanism women translators and the role of censorship and the continuity of Catholic publishing from that time The book is completed with a chronology and detailed indices Vincent Gillespie is J R R Tolkien Professor of English Literature and Language at the University of Oxford Susan Powell held a Chair in Medieval Texts and Culture at the University of Salford and is currently affiliated to the Universities of London and York Contributors Tamara Atkin Alan Coates Thomas Betteridge Julia Boffey James Clark A S G Edwards Martha W Driver Mary Erler Alexandra Gillespie Vincent Gillespie Andrew Hope Brenda Hosington Susan Powell Pamela Robinson AnneF Sutton Daniel Wakelin James Willoughby Lucy Wooding

The Typographic Imaginary in Early Modern English Literature Rachel Stenner, 2018-07-04 The typographic imaginary is an aesthetic linking authors from William Caxton to Alexander Pope this study centrally contends Early modern English literature engages imaginatively with printing and this book both characterizes that engagement and proposes the typographic imaginary as a framework for its analysis Certain texts Rachel Stenner states describe the people places concerns and processes of printing in ways that over time generate their own figurative authority The typographic imaginary is posited as a literary phenomenon shared by different writers a wider cultural understanding of printing and a critical concept for unpicking the particular imaginative otherness that printing introduced to literature Authors use the typographic imaginary to interrogate their place in an evolving media environment to assess the value of the printed text and to analyse the roles of other text producing agents This book treats a broad array of authors and forms printers manuals William Caxton s paratexts the pamphlet dialogues of Robert Copland and Ned Ward poetic miscellanies the prose fictions of William Baldwin George Gascoigne and Thomas Nashe the poetry and prose of Edmund Spenser writings by John Taylor and Alexander Pope At its broadest this study contributes to an understanding of how technology changes cultures Located at the crossroads between literary material and book historical research the particular intervention that this work makes is threefold In describing the typographic imaginary it proposes a new framework for analysis of print culture It aims to focus critical engagement on symbolic representations of material forms Finally it describes a lineage of late medieval and early modern authors stretching from the mid fifteenth to the mid eighteenth centuries that are linked by their engagement of a particular aesthetic
