

The background of the slide is a scenic landscape. In the foreground, a wide, light-colored river or path flows from the bottom left towards the center. To the right of the river, there are dark, forested hills. In the background, more hills are visible under a sky filled with soft, white and grey clouds. The overall tone is somewhat muted and atmospheric.

Commerce Nations C F Bastable:

The Commerce of Nations Charles Francis Bastable, 1899 The Commerce of Nations C. Bastable, 2020-05 This is undoubtedly the most scientific volume which has yet come under our notice of the series to which it belongs Professor Bastable's previous writings on the subject of international trade form a guarantee for sound and careful reasoning which is fulfilled in the little book before us He has if we may say so made a department of economics which is perhaps the most intricate and perplexing within the range of the science in a certain sense his own and yet he has also in this book as it appears to us been singularly successful in combining fullness of knowledge and profundity of thought with lucid and interesting explanation of practical fact It is a strange coincidence that in England at any rate perhaps the greatest success of economics in the domain of practice has been achieved in the department so difficult in theory of international trade but the success was won by the help of the inevitable logic of stubborn fact rather than by the assistance of the nice refinements of theory and the persistency with which protectionist fallacies linger among us and still continue to captivate even able intellects is one indication of a failure to grasp the essential elements of the economic theory of international trade In discussing then the subject of the commerce of nations Professor Bastable is dealing with what is still a question of to day and will we imagine for some time continue to be so although the tendency of thought and of practice may really incline in the hopeful direction indicated by him in his last chapter He has endeavored throughout his treatment of this burning social question to be both scientific and popular and to combine an account of facts with a statement of theory He therefore begins by giving a brief review of the theory of international trade and by examining the part played in it by money This naturally leads to a temperate account of the mercantile system and its later development into protection The English customs system from 1815 to 1860 and the tariff system so contrary in its methods and tendencies of the United States are then reviewed The reform of continental tariffs from 1816 to 1865 and the recent protectionist reaction which has succeeded to the marked and general inclination in the direction of greater commercial liberty which followed on the adoption of free trade by England are considered in the following chapters and the similar recent tendencies of colonial tariffs next receive attention Professor Bastable then passes back from the region of fact to the sphere of theory and supplies a fair but destructive account of the modern protectionist theory He presents and criticises successively the chief economic arguments advanced in its favour and then proceeds to review the non economic arguments which are based on social or political grounds This is followed by a criticism of the other expedients of the system besides import duties such as bounties or export duties and by an account of the practical complications and jobbery and smuggling to which protection seems inevitably to lead and then two concluding chapters are devoted to the more modern proposals for reciprocity or retaliation and for commercial federation Within the necessarily confined limits of a convenient handbook Professor Bastable has thus managed to compress what would otherwise have to be sought through many volumes of no inconsiderable size and this is we think especially apparent in his chapter on the arguments put forward on behalf of protection The Cambridge Economic History of Europe Michael Moïssey Postan, H. J. Habakkuk, 1966 For contents and other editions see Title Catalog Routledge Revivals: The Commerce of Nations (1923) C.F. Bastable, 2016-09-19 First published in 1929 this book was written to express the belief that nations commercial policy and doctrines could best be explained by reference to their history The author argues that this applies equally to legislation and theory for example both the McKinley Act of 1890 and contemporaneous protectionism are examined as the culmination of a century's worth of legislative and theoretical progress This edition is also updated from the original 1891 publication to take account of the effect of the First World War on the European and American tariff systems and also how the preferential system of trade within the British Empire recast relations between Britain and its dominions

Journal of the Canadian Bankers' Association Canadian Bankers' Association, 1901 Scottish Banking and Insurance Magazine, 1892 The London Weaver's Company 1600 - 1970 Alfred Plummer, 2013-11-05 The Worshipful Company of Weavers the oldest of all the London Livery Companies can trace its origins to a twelfth century craft guild Largely based upon original records never before studied in depth this authorized history of the company covers the period from the end of the reign of Elizabeth I to modern times Alfred Plummer presents a portrait of the London Hand loom weavers in their historical setting living strenuous lives in an industry which was once essential but has now disappeared He describes many fascinating aspects of the Company's eventful history from the numbers of apprentices to their parents and places of origin the attitude towards the admission of women and the enlistment by the Weaver's Company of the powerful pen of Daniel Defoe In addition the work examines the impact of such catastrophes as the Great Plague and the Fire of London The author deals with the dogged struggle for survival of the famous Spitalfields silk weavers and explores the part played by the Weavers and their associated London Livery companies in the plantation of Ulster under James I nearly four centuries ago This book was first published in 1972 The New Larned History for Ready Reference, Reading and Research Josephus Nelson Larned, 1923 The Rural Exodus Peter Anderson Graham, 1892 A Shorter Working Day Robert Abbott Hadfield, Henry de Beltgens Gibbins, 1892
