Liberating People, Planet, and Religion Joerg Rieger, Terra Rowe, 2024-05-29 There is growing consensus that life on the planet is in peril if climate change continues at its current pace At stake is not only the future of many species but of humanity itself As an increasing number of ecological economists have emphasized these problems will only be adequately addressed by re examining economic systems from an ecological perspective fundamentally calling into question assumptions of unlimited growth and the maximization of shareholder profit foundational to neoliberal capitalism Religion and ecology scholars have also increasingly emphasized the ways climate change challenges assumed divides between nature and culture religion and labor economy and ecology and calls for critical and constructive engagement with the religion economy and ecology nexus Often though religious engagements with economy and ecology have placed emphasis on individual morality action and agency at the level of consumption patterns or have suggested mere modifications within existing economic paradigms Contributors to this volume call into question the adequacy of this approach in light of the urgency of climate change which is always ever entwined with ongoing patterns of exploitation oppression and colonialism in current economic systems Rather than tweaking a system of exploitation for instance by emphasizing individual consumption or care for human and non human victims these authors articulate important opportunities for religious engagement activism resistance and solidarity around issues of production and labor. Recalling that Marx linked agencies and labor of people as well as the other than human world, these authors aim to articulate a sense in which liberation of people and the planet are intertwined and can be accomplished only through collaboration for their common good. The basic intuition driving this volume is that while Christianity has by and large become the handmaiden of exploitative capitalism and empire, it might also reclaim latent theologies and religious practices that call into question the fundamental valuation of labor without recognition or rest of extractive exploitation and a winner take all praxis. In the process, Christianity might reclaim and reinvest in tenuous historical materializations of transformed ecological and economic relationships while economics might be re-informed by a valuation of the shared oikos as well as a just accounting of and remuneration for labor. Together they might serve the aim of the flourishing of all people and the planet.

Reset the Heart Dr. Mai-Anh Le Tran, 2017-05-02

When the BlackLivesMatter protest movement burst into dynamic action following the shooting death of young Michael Brown in the fall of 2014 in Ferguson, MO, a good number of clergy and lay leaders in greater St. Louis sprang to action and learned anew what it took to put some feet to their prayers. However, as improvisational efforts continued to rally and organize churches toward the enduring work of confronting the insidious violence of systemic social injustices in their own backyard, these religious leaders ran head-on into a familiar yet perplexing wall: the incapacity and unwillingness of their faith communities to respond. In many cases, the resistance was and still is fierce, eerily reminiscent of the stand-offs that divided religious communities and leadership in the 1960s Civil Rights era. If the Church's teaching, learning, and practice of faith is purportedly transformative, then where was it that faith when it was needed most? If good religious formation had been happening or had it then, why the enduring signs of indifference, paralysis, apathy, exasperation, resistance, symptoms of anesthetized moral consciousness, and debilitated hope in the face of pervasive social, cultural, and violence? The answer may come in a searing indictment that in an emerging cultural, religious era in which religious identity, expression, and experience are increasingly pluralistic yet also politicized, polarizing, and racialized, Christian faith communities, even those of progressive theological persuasions, are still held under dominant cultural captivity and fashioned by colonizing teaching strategies of disimagination such that the stories, theologies, and rituals/practices of the faith have effectively become obstacles that anesthetize moral agency and debilitate courageous action for hope and change. This book addresses the above practical concerns with three paradigmatic questions: 1. What does it mean to educate for faith in a world marked by violence? 2. How are Christian faith communities complicit in the teaching and learning of violence? 3. What renewed practices of faith and educational leadership yield potential for the unlearning and unmaking of violence? An organizing thesis drives the inquiry: Thinking and teaching for violence-resisting action as Christians requires an on-purpose setting of our hearts in a world that violates and harms with impunity. Against violent disimagination and its conscience-numbing instruments, Christian religious communities are being challenged to regenerate radical forms of prophetic, protested faith, the skills and instincts of which must be honed deliberately This occurs through intentional and strategic forms of public consciousness raising for the sake of participation and action an action that moves toward and is fueled by critical insurrectional resurrectional hope Sexual Disorientations Kent L. Brintnall, Joseph A. Marchal, Stephen D. Moore, 2017-11-07 Sexual Disorientations brings some of the most recent and significant works of queer theory into conversation with the overlapping fields of biblical theological and religious studies to explore the deep theological resonances of questions about the social and cultural construction of time memory and futurity Apocalyptic eschatological and apophatic languages frameworks and orientations pervade both queer theorizing and theologizing about time affect history and desire The volume fosters a more explicit engagement between theories of queer temporality and affectivity and religious texts and discourses Economics in Spirit and Truth N. Wariboko, 2014-11-06 Wariboko offers a critical philosophical perspective on the logics and dynamics of finance capital in the twenty first century in order to craft a model of the care of the soul that will enable citizens to not only better negotiate their economic existences and moral evaluations within it but also resist its negative impact on social life Assembling Futures Jennifer Quigley, Catherine Keller, 2024-08-20 Transdisciplinary insights at the intersection of religion democracy ecology and economy What is the relationship of religion to economy ecology and democracy In our fraught moment what critical questions of religion may help to assemble democratic processes ecosystems and economic structures differently What possible futures might emerge from transdisciplinary work across these traditionally siloed scholarly areas of interest The essays in Assembling Futures reflect scholarly conversations among historians political scientists theologians biblical studies scholars and scholars of religion that transgress disciplinary boundaries to consider urgent matters expressive of the values practices and questions that shape human existence Each essay recognizes urgent imbrications of the global economy multinational politics and the materiality of ecological entanglements in assembling still possible futures for the earth Precisely in their diversity of disciplinary starting points and ethical styles the essays that follow enact their intersectional forcefield even more vibrantly Life Under the Baobab Tree Kenneth N.
