

CRITICAL REFLECTION

What are reflection and critical reflection in action research? What are the key models and approaches for critical reflection? How do researchers engage in critical reflection? What tools assist with reflection? These questions are the focus of this entry.

Background and Definition of Reflection and Critical Reflection

A multitude of definitions of action research include reflection as a key element of the approach. For example, as early as 1988, Stephen Kemmis and Robin McTaggart explained that action research was a form of collective self-reflective inquiry. Later, in 2001, Bob Dick considered that alternating action and critical reflection was part of action research. It is often said that in action research, reflection integrates the action and the research. Alongside the articulated centrality of reflection, however, there is an assumption that everyone knows what it is—this is not always the case. To understand what it is requires a short walk through the history of our understanding of reflection.

Although Donald Schön's work in the 1980s is most frequently referred to in defining reflection associated with the notion of enhancing professional practice through a process of structured thinking, this material in fact drew influence from the early Greek 'Socratic questioning' and John Dewey's work on reflection in the 1930s. In the 1990s, David Boud and his team indicated that reflection involved recapturing experience, thinking about this experience, mulling over it and evaluating it.

Critical Reflection In Health And Social Care White, Sue,Fook, Jan,Gardner, Fiona,2006-07-01 the book makes an excellent contribution to the library of those keen to delve further into the realm of critical reflection understand various interpretations of interdisciplinary practices and use these to aid their own and others professional practice exploration and development Learning in Health and Social Care How can professionals reflect critically on the aspects of their work they take for granted How can professionals practise with creativity intelligence and compassion What current methods and frameworks are available to assist professionals to reflect critically on their practice The use of critical reflection in professional practice is becoming increasingly popular across the health professions as a way of ensuring ongoing scrutiny and improved concrete practice skills transferable across a variety of settings in the health social care and social work fields This book showcases current work within the field of critical reflection throughout the world and across disciplines in health and social care as well as analyzing the literature in the field Critical Reflection in Health and Social Care reflects the transformative potential of critical reflection and provides practitioners students educators and researchers with the key concepts and methods necessary to improve practice through effective critical reflection Contributors Gurid Aga Askeland Andy Bilson Fran Crawford Jan Fook Lynn Froggett Sue Frost Fiona Gardner Jennifer Lehmann Marceline Naudi Bairbre Redmond Gerhard Reimann Colin Stuart Pauline Sung Chan Carolyn Taylor Susan White Elizabeth Whitmore Angelina Yuen Tsang Researching Critical Reflection Jan Fook, Val Collington, Fiona Ross, Gillian Ruch, Linden West, 2015-10-05 Critical reflection helps professionals to learn directly from their practice experience so that they can improve their own work in an ongoing and flexible way something essential in today's complex and changing organisations It allows change to be managed in a way which enables individuals to preserve a sense of what is fundamentally important to them as professionals It is particularly important as it can also help make sense of some fundamental issues and so also has implications for how we live our lives However more systematic research on critical reflection is needed to help us understand what works best for professionals in different settings This timely work explores how critical reflection is researched evaluated and used as a research method itself with the aim of improving how it is taught and practised in a rigorous and transferable way Developing a more comprehensive and multi disciplinary view of the current state of critical reflection and the research directions which need to be taken the book is divided into four parts It Provides an overview of different perspectives on critical reflection and stimulates dialogue between them Establishes some common platforms from which to develop further research directions Identifies the major issues in evaluating critical reflection teaching and main methods for doing so Contributes to social science methodological innovations by exploring how methods based on critical reflection can be used for researching professional practice Contains contributions from academics who are internationally known and highly experienced in different aspects of critical reflection Researching Critical Reflection is an important reference for all students practitioners and researchers including in the areas of education management health and social work who engage with critical reflection to develop their practice Practising Critical Reflection to Develop Emancipatory Change Christine Morley, 2016-04-08 Overwhelmingly critical practitioners working across a range of human service fields who are committed to emancipatory and progressive social change ideals report feeling powerless alienated from the means of change and hopeless about their capacities to make a difference in the lives of the individuals groups or communities with whom they work because of restrictive contexts that ultimately determine the nature and parameters of their work This ground breaking book addresses this dilemma by demonstrating how critical reflection as an educational tool enables practitioners to envision possibilities for change The legal system particularly in its response to sexual assault provides a perfect example of this type of context and this volume explores the work of sexual assault practitioners that are engaged in supporting victims survivors of sexual assault through the legal process By reshaping ideas that have previously been considered as predominantly theoretical and abstract Morley s work provides an innovative framework that enables social work and human services practitioners to find hope agency and practical strategies to work towards change despite operating in contexts that appear immutably oppressive

Practicing Critical Reflection in Social Care Organisations

Jan Fook,2021-09-09 This book explores concrete examples of different strategies and activities aimed at creating and embedding critically reflective learning and working environments within organisations whose prime function is social care Critical reflection has long been recommended as a general professional skill and is a core component of the practice capabilities in social work in countries across the Western world However despite unequivocal support for it in social work education sustaining critical reflection within organisations as both an individual and collective practices supported by organisational cultures is problematic With contributions from social work practitioners and educators who have sought to embed critical reflection into broader activities and cultures within their organizations the book addresses common features of critical reflection and challenges and benefits in specific case studies This book will inspire and develop new thinking and vision about being critically reflective in organisations and facilitate efforts to improve the learning and working experience in addition to that of service quality and delivery It will be required reading for all undergraduate and postgraduate social work modules focusing on management leadership organizational change and professional education

Social Work, Critical Reflection and the Learning Organization

Mark Baldwin,2016-04-01 A critical characteristic of human service organizations is their capacity to learn from experience and to adapt continuously to changing external conditions such as downward pressure on resources constant reconfiguration of the welfare state and rapidly changing patterns of social need This invaluable groundbreaking volume discusses in detail the concept of the learning organization in particular its relevance to social work and social services Contributors join together from across Europe North America and Australia to explore the development of the learning organization within social work contexts and its use as a strategic tool for meeting problems of continuous learning supervision and change The volume addresses a range of important topics from strategies for embedding learning and critical reflection in the social work learning organization to the implications of the learning organization for the new community based health and social care agenda
