Crop Production Global Environmental Issues:

Crop Production and Global Environmental Issues Khalid Rehman Hakeem, 2015-12-08 Meeting the world's food security challenge will require a multi-national collaborative effort to integrate the best research from science, engineering and socioeconomics so that technological advances can bring benefits where they are most needed. The present book covers the effect of major environmental problems on crop production and how to cope with these issues for sustainable agriculture and improvements of crops. The world's population is predicted to hit 9.6 Billion by 2050 up from today's total of nearly 7.3 Billion and with it food demand is predicted to increase substantially. The post-war second agricultural revolution in developed countries and the green revolution in developing nations in the mid 1960s converted agricultural practices and elevated crop yields spectacularly but the outcome is levelling off and will not meet projected demand. Simultaneously crop production is affected by many other factors including industrial pollution, overuse of fertilizers and insecticides, heavy metal and radiation stresses etc. It has been noted that many pests are becoming resistant to insecticides. Estimates vary but around 25% of crops can be lost to pests and diseases. Climate change associated with agriculture is also a global issue. Agriculture is a significant contributor to greenhouse gases and is estimated to account for 10-12% of total greenhouse gas (GHG) emissions. Many of the issues highlighted are global problems and are addressed thoroughly in this work. Crop Production and Global Environmental Issues Khalid Rehman Hakeem, 2015. Agricultural production has been considered as the key sector for revitalization of the economy and well-being of the people in any country. For decades due to increasing food demand together with policies encouraging production, agricultural science has focused on boosting production through the development of new technologies. Agriculture has become increasingly intensive. Farmers are becoming capable of producing higher yields using less labor and less land due to many factors including use of fertilizer and pesticides, introduction of farm machinery, development of hybrid and genetically modified strains and increased knowledge about farm management practices. Intensification of agriculture has not, however, been an unmixed blessing because this success has come at a high environmental cost. The damaging effects of intensification of agriculture include water, air and soil pollution as well as the loss of wildlife habitats and landscape features. As agricultural sustainability means maintaining productivity while protecting the natural resource base, there is increasing general recognition of the need to improve environmental performance in agriculture through enhancing the benefits and reducing the harmful environmental effects. The book Crop Production and Global Environmental Issues is a very timely effort in this direction. It discusses the main environmental issues and challenges which affect the crop production and productivity throughout the globe, particularly in developing countries. The book also provides some solutions to cope up with such challenges. Global Environmental Issues Frances Harris, 2012-01-30. Global Environmental Issues second edition builds on the popularity of the first edition, viewing global environmental problems as complex issues with a network of causes influenced by a range of actors with differing priorities. The book recognises that science underpins much of what happens in society and therefore it is important to be able to interpret the environmental and social consequences of scientific developments In addition to discussing the main biophysical causes the book illustrates how socio economic and political factors determine why and how people use land resources and technology and how this in turn affects natural resource management This edition includes new chapters on the politics of science International environmental regulation and treaties environmental issues in a globalised world and natural resource management Global Environmental Issues second edition is essential reading for upper level undergraduates and Masters students within departments of Environmental Science and Geography Includes case studies from around the world to provide a real life context for the issues tackled in each chapter Considers both the results of human actions and natural environmental change in order to provide balanced in depth debate Includes coverage of contemporary hot topics such as biodiversity globalization and sustainable development Chapters authored by experts in the field Includes new chapters on The politics of science International environmental regulation and treaties Environmental issues in a globalised world and Natural Resource Management Expanded sections include negotiating multilateral environmental agreements GM crops biofuels and marine and freshwater resources

The World Food Situation Pierre R. Crosson, Kenneth D Frederick, 2016-03-17 At the beginning of the 1970 s global grain reserves were level and food prices were low however as the decade progressed crop production plummeted leading to a food crisis Originally published in the aftermath in 1977 Crosson and Frederick set out to explore the ability of agricultural output to meet the global food demands of future generations This study analyses how resources and environmental factors would affect food production in developing countries and the United States until the end of the 21st Century The environmental impacts of land levels fertiliser and pesticide use are explored in relation to the challenges of meeting food demands This title will be of interest to students of environmental studies Global Environmental Change and Agriculture George B. Frisvold, Betsey Kuhn, 1999 Global Environmental Change and Agriculture offers a comprehensive perspective on the causes consequences and possible policy solutions for climatic change as we move into the twenty first century It assesses the impact of potential future global climate change on agriculture and the need to sustain agricultural growth for economic development The book begins by examining the role of international research institutions in overcoming environmental constraints on sustainable agricultural growth and economic development The authors then discuss how agricultural research systems may be restructured to respond to global environmental problems such as climate change and loss of genetic diversity The discussion then extends to consider environmental accounting and indexing to illustrate how environmental quality can be included formally in measures of national income social welfare and sustainability The third part of the book focuses on the effects of and policy responses to climate change Chapters examine the effect of climate change on production trade land use patterns and livelihoods They consider impacts on the distribution of income between developed and developing countries and between different social classes within the developing world where agriculture remains a major economic activity Authors take on an economy wide perspective to draw lessons for agricultural trade land use and tax policy This book will be of special interest to agricultural development and environmental economists as well as policy analysts in government and at international agencies confronting practical problems of environmental and economic assessment Environmental Issues and Sustainable Development Suriyanarayanan Sarvajayakesavalu, Pisit
