Cruise Missile Proliferation In The 1990s Washington Papers:

The Washington Papers , Cruise Missiles and Modern War David J. Nichols, 2000 This study examines how the proliferation of technologies has remedied the historical shortcomings of cruise missiles to produce a weapon that has significant military capabilities The argument in this study is that cruise missiles are more cost effective weapons than manned aircraft and ballistic missiles It argues furthermore that the proliferation of cruise missile systems and technologies will transform cruise missiles into important and perhaps decisive weapons in the twenty first century The second theme of this study is that the United States must develop the ability to defend itself against a cruise missile attack For a number of reasons it is unlikely that U S defenses could entirely defeat such an attack in view of the difficulties of detecting and engaging a mass attack with cruise missiles that a determined enemy could use to overwhelm the defenses Bearing in mind reasonable estimates of the numbers of cruise missiles that states could possess this study concludes with the argument that the optimal strategy for an adversary against which the United States must defend itself is an attack against U S logistics and supply centers This represents the nature of the asymmetric attacks that the United States will confront in the twenty first century Page The Future of the International Nuclear Non-Proliferation Regime Marianne van Leeuwen, 2023-10-20 The 1995 conference on the review and extension of the Nuclear Non Proliferation Treaty may well mark an important turning point The treaty itself but also the wider international regime built around it are at stake The Future of the International Nuclear Non Proliferation Regime deals with various aspects of the problems of nuclear proliferation and the international struggle against it Authors from Europe the United States and Australia have contributed to this book which was produced under the auspices of the Netherlands Institute of International Relations Clingendael The reader is first offered regional case studies on North Korea South Asia the Middle East and the former Soviet Union followed by chapters on nuclear safeguards and export controls systems and contributions on a Comprehensive Test Ban Treaty and security guarantees The two concluding chapters evaluate and propose policies to strengthen the non proliferation regime beyond 1995 It will be of interest to policy makers students of international relations and journalists Ballistic Missile Proliferation Aaron Karp, 1996 The current concern that ballistic missile technologies are spreading throughout the world is addressed in this book It examines the missile and missile armament programmes and technologies and the ability of countries to acquire such technologies The concluding chapter investigates the international efforts to control ballistic missile proliferation Precision-guided Munitions and Human Suffering in War James E. Hickey, 2016-04-08 James Hickey proceeds from the premise that throughout history humans have demonstrated a proclivity for using violence against one another as a means to achieve an end means enabled in many respects by the technologies available at the time Advancing technology has often been a prime enabler of ever increasing levels of violence and attendant human suffering At a few junctures in history however certain technologies have seemingly provided the armed forces that possess them the ability to fight wars with decreasing levels of violence and suffering Today precision guided munitions PGMs with their high degree of discrimination and accuracy again hold such promise This book seeks to answer the question Do PGMs mitigate suffering in war and have these weapons changed the way decisions regarding war and peace have been made Answering this question helps us understand possible shifts in emphasis in modern warfare both in terms of methods employed and of the greater concern placed on limiting human suffering during conflict This book will help students of ethics just war and military history and senior military and civilian leaders to understand the possible outcomes and wider implications of their strategic choices to use such technology

Weapons Proliferation and World Order Brad Roberts, 2023-09-29 With the end of the Cold War the subject of weapons proliferation has acquired new interest and prominence So too have questions about the nature of the world order that will succeed the structure of the last fifty years This study explores the connections among these topics It describes the prevailing conceptual model of nuclear proliferation evaluates proliferation s changing technical features considers economic and political factors bearing on its future rate and character and speculates about proliferation s implications on the post cold war world order It also considers the role of international public policy in meeting proliferation s challenges Arguing that updated approaches are needed the analysis emphasizes cooperative over coercive approaches to order It concludes with an assessment of progress to date in meeting these new challenges arguing that the new agenda is only slowly coming into focus

Weapons Proliferation and War in the Greater Middle East Richard L.

Russell, 2007-05-07 This important new book explores the strategic reasons behind the proliferation of nuclear biological and chemical weapons as well as ballistic missile delivery systems in the Greater Middle East It examines the uses and limitations of chemical weapons in regional combat ballistic missile warfare and defenses as well as Iran s drive for nuclear weapons and the likely regional reactions should Tehran acquire a nuclear weapons inventory This book also discusses Chinese assistance to WMD and ballistic programs in the Greater Middle East Finally this book recommends policy options for American diplomacy to counter the challenges posed by WMD proliferation This essential study prepares the ground for the challenges facing the international community Richard Russell is a professor at the National Defense University s Near East South Asia Center for Strategic Studies in Washington DC He also teaches at the Security Studies Program at Georgetown University He previously served as a political military analyst at the CIA

Military Industry and Regional Defense

Policy Timothy D. Hoyt, 2017-07-05 Military Industry and Regional Defense Policy re examines military industrialization in the developing world focusing on policy making in producer states and the impact of security perceptions on such policy making Timothy D Hoyt reassesses the role of regional state sub systems in international relations and recent historical studies of international technology and arms transfers Looking at Israel Iraq and India the three most powerful regional powers in the Cold War era he presents an expert analysis of the three sided phenomena of the regional hegemony the regional competitor and the small over achiever This new book breaks away from existing literature on military industries in the developing world which has focused on their economic and development costs and benefits These past studies have used primitive methodologies that focus on the production of complete weapons systems a misleading gauge in a world of growing international defense cooperation They have also ignored empirical evidence of the impact of local military industrial production on Cold War regional conflict and of the defence planning and concerns that drove development of indigenous military industries in key regional powers This new text delivers an incisive new perspective

Combined Arms Warfare in the Twentieth Century Jonathan Mallory House,2001 For centuries the world has witnessed the development and use of increasingly complex and powerful military systems and technologies In the process the art of war has truly become the art of combined arms warfare in which infantry artillery air support intelligence and other key elements are all coordinated for maximum effect Nowhere has this trend been more visible than in the history of twentieth century warfare Originally published as an essential in house study for U S Army officers during the 1980s this much revised and expanded edition remains the most complete study available on the subject Rewritten with a much wider readership in mind it both retains its enormous practical utility for military professionals and provides a valuable and appealing introduction for scholars and general readers Jonathan House author of the original work brings the story of combined arms up to the present covering among other things Desert Storm the war in Chechnya and the rise of smart weapons and related technologies He traces the evolution of tactics weapons and organization in five major militaries American British German Russian and French over 100 years of warfare Revealing both continuities and contrasts within and between these fighting forces he also provides illuminating glimpses of Israeli and Japanese contributions to combined arms doctrine Expanding his insightful analysis of the world wars and the wars in Korea and Vietnam House also offers much new material focused on the post Vietnam period Throughout he analyzes such issues as command and control problems of highly centralized organizations the development of special operations forces advances in weapons technology including ballistic and anti ballistic missile systems the trade offs involved in using heavy versus light armed forces and the enduring obstacles to effective cooperation between air and land forces His strong critique of the air superiority propaganda that came out of the Gulf War is sure to spark some heated debates Rigorously comparative House s study addresses significant questions about how nations prepare for war learn or don t learn its harsh lessons and adapt to changing times and technologies Unique in the annals of the literature on warfare it will be the standard work on this subject for a long time to come

A Chronology of PRC Missile Trade and Developments Timothy V. McCarthy,1992 Once again Chinese missile exports are the subject of international concern Recent reports indicate that the People s Republic of China PRC shipped chemicals suitable for production of solid fuel missiles to Syria and guidance systems for the M 11 missile to Pakistan In order to provide a basis for informed debate on the sensitive issue of China s missile export policy the International Missile Proliferation IMP Project has compiled a chronology of PRC Missile Related Developments The chronology is based on an extensive list of publicly available sources held by the IMP Project
