Designing Optimal Strategies For Mineral Exploration:

Designing Optimal Strategies for Mineral Exploration J.G. De Geoffroy, T.K. Wignall, 2012-12-06 Few knowledgeable people would deny that the field of mineral exploration is facing some difficult times in the foreseeable future. Among the woes we can cite a worldwide economic uneasiness reflected by sluggish and at times widely fluctuating metal prices, global financial uncertainties and relentless pressures on costs despite a substantial slowing down of the rate of inflation. Furthermore, management is forced to turn to more sophisticated and expensive technologies and to look farther afield to more remote regions as the better quality and more easily accessible ore deposits have now been revealed. This rather gloomy outlook should persuade explorationists to cast about for a new philosophy with which to guide mineral exploration through the challenging decades ahead. Once already in the early 1960s a call for change had been heard (Ref 30 in Chapter 1) when it became obvious that the prospecting methods of yesteryear so successful in the past could not keep up with the rapidly growing demand for minerals of the postwar period. The answer: a massive introduction of sophisticated geophysical and geochemical technologies backed by new geological models proved spectacularly successful throughout the 1960s and the 1970s. But for both economic and technological reasons the brisk pace of the last two decades has considerably slowed down in the early 1980s as if a new threshold has been reached.

Statistical Models for Optimizing Mineral Exploration J.G. De Geoffroy, T.K. Wignall, 2012-12-06 After the spectacular successes of the 1960s and 1970s the mineral exploration business is at a crossroads facing uncertain times in the decades ahead. This situation requires a rethinking of the philosophy guiding mineral exploration if it is to emulate its recent performance. The main argument of a previous volume titled Designing Optimal Strategies for Mineral Exploration published in 1985 by Plenum Publishing Corporation of New York is that a possible answer to the challenge facing mineral explorationists lies in the philosophy of optimization. This new approach should help exploration staff make the best achievable use of the sophisticated and costly technology which is presently available for the detection of ore deposits. The main emphasis of the present volume is placed on the mathematical and computational aspects of the optimization of mineral exploration. The seven chapters making up the main body of the book are devoted to the description and application of various types of computerized geomathematical models which underpin the optimization of the mineral exploration sequence. The topics covered include: a) the optimal selection of ore deposit types and regions of search as well as prospecting areas within the regions; Chapters 2, 3, 4, 6; b) the designing of airborne and ground field programs for the optimal coverage of prospecting areas; Chapters 2, 3, 4; c) delineation and evaluation of exploration targets within prospecting areas by means of optimized models; Chapter 5.

Measured Success Peter Cebon, 2008-07-15 For several years Australia has been slipping behind the rest of the OECD in its rate of business innovation. If, as economists believe, innovation is the fundamental driver of prosperity, this is a harbinger of long-term problems for the country. To find a successful way forward we need to understand the nature and limitations of our innovation achievements Measured Success analyses eleven cases of Australian high technology innovation exploring where we have gone right and where more could have been achieved Drawing lessons from both the successes and failures the authors provide valuable insights into Australian innovation management and the challenges that lie ahead Measured Success is an important commentary on the state of innovation in Australia and offers fresh direction for policy in this area
