Designing Web-Based Applications for 21st Century Writing Classrooms George Pullman, Gu Baotong, 2016-12-05 Designing Web Based Applications for 21st Century Writing Classrooms brings together for the first time a group of scholars and teachers who have been developing on their own initiative web based solutions to technical and professional writing instructional problems In industry the perennial question is whether to buy or build but in academia for various reasons buy is rarely an option Individual faculty members do not have the money to pay for software solutions and often their interests are too local or small scale to warrant institutional level involvement In addition the design of commercial applications from vendors typically does not take into account the unique needs and considerations of teachers of writing and often reflects a design ideology quite different from theirs This is why so many writing teachers have turned to open source solutions and in the process of learning how to tweak them to make them more responsive to their specific needs why so many of these teachers have developed programming and design skills Beyond exigency the motivation for becoming proficient at interface and database design comes from the observation that the nature of writing is changing dramatically Text is no longer an object It has become a place of interaction consumers are becoming producers And the work of technical and professional communication indeed the work of writing teachers more generally is becoming increasingly involved in the design and implementation of places of interaction Words have become data texts are becoming communities

Rhetorical Accessibility Lisa Meloncon, 2014-11-30 Rhetorical Accessibility is the first text to bring the fields of technical communication and disability studies into conversation The two fields also share a pragmatic foundation in their concern with accommodation and accessibility that is the material practice of making social and technical environments and texts as readily available easy to use and or understandable as possible to as many people as possible including those with disabilities Through its concern with the pragmatic theoretically grounded work of helping users interface effectively and seamlessly with technologies the field of technical communication is perfectly poised to put the theoretical work of disability studies into practice In other words technical communication could ideally be seen as a bridge between disability theories and web accessibility practices While technical communicators are ideally positioned to solve communication problems and to determine the best delivery method those same issues are compounded when they are viewed through the dual lens of accessibility and disability With the increasing use of wireless expanding global marketplaces increasing prevalence of technology in our daily lives and ongoing changes of writing through and with technology technical communicators need to be acutely aware of issues involved with accessibility and disability This collection will advance the field of technical communication by expanding the conceptual apparatus for understanding the intersections among disability studies technical communication and accessibility and by offering new perspectives theories and features that can only emerge when different fields are brought into conversation with one another and is the first text to bring the fields of technical communication and disability studies into conversation with one another
