Early Category and Concept Development David H. Rakison,Lisa M.

Oakes,2008-12-30 Whether or not infants earliest perception of the world is a blooming buzzing confusion it is not long before they come to perceive structure and order among the objects and events around them At the core of this process and cognitive development in general is the ability to categorize to group events objects or properties together and to form mental representations or concepts that encapsulate the commonalities and structure of these categories Categorization is the primary means of coding experience underlying not only perceptual and reasoning processes but also inductive inference and language The aim of this book is to bring together the most recent findings and theories about the origins and early development of categorization and conceptual abilities Despite recent advances in our understanding of this area a number of hotly debated issues remain at the center of the controversy over categorization Researchers continue to ask questions such as Which mechanisms for categorization are available at birth and which emerge later What are the relative roles of perceptual similarity and nonobservable properties in early classification What is the role of contextual variation in categorization by infants and children Do different experimental procedures reveal the same kind of knowledge Can computational models simulate infant and child categorization How do computational models inform behavioral research

What is the impact of language on category development How does language partition the world This book is the first to address these and other key questions within a single volume The authors present a diverse set of views representing cutting edge empirical and theoretical advances in the field The result is a thorough review of empirical contributions to the literature and a wealth of fresh theoretical perspectives on early categorization Energy ,1980 Digital Literacy: Concepts, Methodologies, Tools, and Applications Management Association, Information Resources,2012-07-31 Digital Literacy Concepts Methodologies Tools and Applications presents a vital compendium of research detailing the latest case studies architectures frameworks methodologies and research on Digital Democracy With contributions from authors around the world this three volume collection presents the most sophisticated research and developments from the field relevant to researchers academics and practitioners alike In order to stay abreast of the latest research this book affords a vital look into Digital Literacy research Scientific and Technical Aerospace Reports ,1983 Teaching Skills with Virtual Humans Marissa Bond,David M.W. Powers,Parimala Raghavendra,2021-06-10 This book highlights current research into virtual tutoring software and presents a case study of the design and application of a social tutor for children with autism Best practice guidelines for developing software based educational interventions are discussed with a major emphasis on facilitating the generalisation of skills to contexts outside of the software itself and on maintaining these skills over time Further the book presents the software solution Thinking Head Whiteboard which provides a framework for families and educators to create unique educational activities utilising virtual character technology and customised to match learners needs and interests In turn the book describes the development and evaluation of a social tutor incorporating multiple life like virtual humans leading to an exploration of the lessons learned and recommendations for the future development of related technologies Technical Abstract Bulletin ,
