City And County Consolidation For Los Angeles:

City and County Consolidation for Los Angeles California Taxpayers' Association, 1917 City and County Consolidation for Los Angeles California Taxpayers' Association, 1917 California Outlook, a Progressive Weekly, 1911 Problems in City and County Consolidation in Los Angeles Wave Taylor Reed, 1930 The Library Log, 1918 The Journal of the Assembly, During the ... Session of the Legislature of the State of California California. Legislature. Assembly, 1909

Metropolitan Communities Government Affairs Foundation (New York), 1957 The Procedure and Problems of the Constitutional Convention, 1920 Selling the City Lee M. A. Simpson, 2004

Between 1880 and 1940 California cities were in the vanguard in creating comprehensive city plans and zoning ordinances that came to characterize modern American city growth. This book reveals the means by which property owning middle class women achieved entry into the male dominated sphere of urban planning. It suggests that women in California were not excluded from public life. Instead they embraced the middle class ideology of propertied self interest and participated to the fullest extent possible in the urban struggle for regional dominance that shaped this period of western history. Likewise as urban historians have presented this story as essentially male, this work suggests that although California's urban elite often maintained a division of labor along traditional gender lines, they clearly worked in a cross gender alliance to shape a regional identity based on a commitment to urban growth.

Inventing Paradise Paul Haddad, 2024-06-18

Inventing Paradise: The Power Brokers Who Created the Dream of Los Angeles traces the improbable rise of Los Angeles through the prism of six visionaries who had outsize influence on the city's growth: Phineas Banning, Harrison Gray Otis, Henry Huntington, Harry Chandler, William Mulholland, and Moses Sherman. In the late 1870s Los Angeles was a violent, dusty 29 square mile pueblo with a few thousand souls, largely unchanged since its founding in 1781. By 1930 its size had swelled to within 96% of its current 468 square miles, housing a staggering 1.2 million people. In just 50 years L.A. had joined the ranks of other world class cities. In the tradition of Mike Davis's classic work City of Quartz, Paul Haddad's Freewaytopia and 10,000 Steps a Day in L.A. debunks many myths about the City of Angels with a wildly entertaining narrative that sheds new light on the fascinating birth of modern Los Angeles. Power came from a select few whose triumphs, scandals, and correspondence are well documented in Inventing Paradise along with other little known facts about L.A. history including how Los Angeles Times chief Harry Chandler pushed eugenics and endorsed white spots, Henry Huntington's and Moses Sherman's trolley systems, and the extortion type practices that led to their expansion. When Los Angeles was so desperate for water it hired a miracle worker who promised rain. How L.A.'s power elite peddled the lie that the Owens River used to flow into Los Angeles and rightfully belonged to the city. When Los Angeles annexed a city in which monkeys cast votes. How Venice, California was not the first Venice. California. William Mulholland's game changing construction of the Los Angeles Aqueduct which raised the city's population ceiling from 250,000 to 2.5 million. Haddad also covers the heavy costs that came with creating paradise in such a short period of time including car dependency environmental problems and deep seated inequities between wealthy white Angelenos and people of color due to racist policies All have left an imprint on present day Los Angeles Los Angeles is known as a city that should not exist and yet it does Through Inventing Paradise Haddad shows readers that Los Angeles is not a paradise found but a paradise that was willed into existence owing to the collective vision of these six Gilded Era born tycoons
