Robert M. Grant

Chapter 1: The Concept of Strategy

Strategy is a unifying theme that gives coherence and direction to the actions and decisions of an individual or an organization. > A method of actions designed to achieve a specific goal.

Four common factors stand out by Lady Gaga and Queen Elizabeth

1. Goals that are consistent and long term.
2. Profound understanding of the competitive environment. Alert to external "threats".
3. Objective appraisal of resources; deploying and building resources.
4. Effective implementation; coordinating and leading "ecosystems" of supportive individuals and organizations.

Same with personal goals.

The basic framework for strategy analysis; superior over SWOT (Strengths, Weaknesses > internal, Opportunities and Threats > external) framework. >> Often arbitrary to classify these factors in two separate partners. Example; Covid-19, threat or opportunity to Starbucks?

Firm as an activity system by Porter; strategy is the creation of a unique and differentiated position involving a different set of activities."

Strategic fit! Fits into Contingency Theory, no one best way. Always depends upon circumstances.

Why do firms need strategy?

Assists the effective management of organizations by enhancing the quality of decision-making (acting as a heuristic, knowledge is integrated and pooled, analytic tools), facilitating coordination (translation into goals, commitments, performance targets => consistent direction.) and by focusing organizations on the pursuit of long-term goals.

Where do we find strategy?
