Culture And Human Devel:

Human Development in Cultural Context A Bame Nsamenang,1992-05-26 A comprehensive systematic account of human development which is sensitive to the needs interests and ecologies of nonwestern cultures and individuals is provided in this unique volume The importance and value of the sociocultural milieu in shaping the growth and development of children is emphasized and the author asserts throughout that children do not grow and develop according to the same patterns regardless of culture The author describes developmental psychology from the perspective of West Africa demonstrating how the local ecology and the resulting cultural ideology lead to differing ways in which children are conceptualized and socialized and in turn how they develop While much of his case material is from Culture and Human Development John Whiting,1993-11-25 John Whiting is a leading figure in psychological anthropology and a pioneer in the development of systematic cross cultural research His work is interdisciplinary drawing mainly on the fields of anthropology psychoanalysis and learning and behavior theory This book includes some of his most influential articles on culture and human development and a comprehensive autobiographical essay Roy D Andrade s introduction assesses the unique contributions of Whiting and locates his work within the contemporary currents of psychological anthropology The Cultural Nature of Human Development Barbara Rogoff,2003-02-13 Three year old Kwara ae children in Oceania act as caregivers of their younger siblings but in the UK it is an offense to leave a child under age 14 ears without adult supervision In the Efe community in Zaire infants routinely use machetes with safety and some skill although U S middle class adults often do not trust young children with knives What explains these marked differences in the capabilities of these children Until recently traditional understandings of human development held that a child s development is universal and that children have characteristics and skills that develop independently of cultural processes Barbara Rogoff argues however that human development must be understood as a cultural process not simply a biological or psychological one Individuals develop as members of a community and their development can only be fully understood by examining the practices and circumstances of their communities
