Thomas Jefferson, Legal History, and the Art of Recollection Matthew Crow, 2017-03-17 Through his discussion of Thomas Jefferson historian Matthew Crow offers a new perspective on constitutional transformation in early American history

Reconstructing the Commercial Republic Stephen L. Elkin, 2015-01-16 James Madison is the thinker most responsible for laying the groundwork of the American commercial republic But he did not anticipate that the propertied class on which he relied would become extraordinarily politically powerful at the same time as its interests narrowed This and other flaws argues Stephen L Elkin have undermined the delicately balanced system he constructed In Reconstructing the Commercial Republic Elkin critiques the Madisonian system revealing which of its aspects have withstood the test of time and which have not The deficiencies Elkin points out provide the starting point for his own constitutional theory of the republic a theory that unlike Madison s lays out a substantive conception of the public interest that emphasizes the power of institutions to shape our political economic and civic lives Elkin argues that his theory should guide us toward building a commercial republic that is rooted in a politics of the public interest and the self interest of the middle class He then recommends specific reforms to create this kind of republic asserting that Americans today can still have the lives a commercial republic is intended to promote lives with real opportunities for economic prosperity republican political self government and individual liberty

Rhetoric and the Republic Mark Garrett Longaker, 2007 Casts a revealing light on modern cultural conflicts through the lens of rhetorical education Contemporary efforts to revitalize the civic mission of higher education in America have revived an age old republican tradition of teaching students to be responsible citizens particularly through the study of rhetoric composition and oratory This book examines the political cultural economic and religious agendas that drove the various and often conflicting curricula and contrasting visions of what good citizenship entails Mark Garrett Longaker argues that higher education more than 200 years ago allowed actors with differing political and economic interests to wrestle over the fate of American citizenship. Then as today there was widespread agreement that civic training was essential in higher education but there were also sharp differences in the various visions of what proper republic citizenship entailed and how to prepare for it. Longaker studies in detail the specific trends in rhetorical education offered at various early institutions such as Yale, Columbia, Pennsylvania and William and Mary with analyses of student lecture notes, classroom activities, disputation exercises, reading lists, lecture outlines and literary society records. These documents reveal an extraordinary range of economic and philosophical interests and allegiances: agrarian, commercial, spiritual, communal and belletristic, specific to each institution. The findings challenge and complicate a widely held belief that early American civic education occurred in a halcyon era of united democratic republicanism. Recognition that there are multiple ways to practice democratic citizenship and to enact democratic discourse historically as well as today best serves the goal of civic education, Longaker argues. Rhetoric and the Republic illuminates an important historical moment in the history of American education and dramatically highlights rhetorical education as a key site in the construction of democracy. Developing Cultures Lawrence E. Harrison, Jerome Kagan, 2012-09-10. Developing Cultures: Essays on Cultural Change is a collection of 21 expert essays on the institutions that transmit cultural values from generation to generation. The essays are an outgrowth of a research project begun by Samuel Huntington and Larry Harrison in their widely discussed book Culture Matters, the goal of which is guidelines for cultural change that can accelerate development in the Third World. The essays in this volume cover child rearing, several aspects of education, the world's major religions, the media, political leadership and development projects. The book is companion volume to Developing Cultures Case Studies 0415952808. Handbook of the English Novel, 1830-1900 Martin Middeke, Monika Pietrzak-Franger, 2020-05-05. Part I of this authoritative handbook offers systematic essays which deal with major historical, social, philosophical, political, cultural and aesthetic contexts of the English novel between 1830 and 1900. The essays offer a wide scope of aspects such as the Industrial Revolution, religion and secularisation, science, technology, medicine, evolution or the increasing mediatisation of the lifeworld. Part II then leads through the work of more than 25 eminent Victorian novelists. Each of these chapters provides both historical and biographical contextualisation, overview, close reading and analysis. They also encourage further research as they look upon the work of the respective authors at issue from the perspectives of cultural and literary theory. Early Republican History in New Turkish Cinema Deniz Gürgeç Atalay, 2025-08-20. This book explores the influence of 1990s criticism on the cinematic portrayal of Turkey's Early Republican Period, focusing on popular historical films about the War of Independence and the founding of the Republic. The 1990s marked a pivotal time when critiques of nationalism and the Early Republican modernization project led to a reassessment of the previously untouchable ideals of Kemalist ideology. As Turkish society confronted the pressures and outcomes of the modernist policies of that era, the grand narrative of the Republic's foundation was opened to new scrutiny.

This study examines how this critical shift shaped the historical films produced in the late 1990s and 2000s revealing the impact of 1990s criticism on the representation of the Early Republican Period in Turkish cinema The Czech And Slovak Republics Carol Leff,2018-02-15 This clear objective introduction to the politics of Czechoslovakia and the successor Czech and Slovak Republics provides a comprehensive analysis of Czechoslovakia in the postcommunist period Carol Leff builds a framework for understanding the dynamics of the triple transition democratization marketization and a national transformation that has reconfigured the dynamic between state and nation She shows how the interaction of these three transformational agendas has shaped Czechoslovakia s development ultimately culminating in the paradoxical disintegration of a state that most of its citizens wished to preserve The book offers a valuable case study of a country coming back to Europe but it also provides an opportunity for analyzing the influence of communism on what had been a significant interwar European state The book s strong comparative element will make it invaluable as well for those seeking to understand contemporary Central and Eastern Europe Commodity & Propriety Gregory S. Alexander,2008-04-15 Most people understand property as something that is owned a means of creating individual wealth But in Commodity and Propriety the first full length history of the meaning of property Gregory Alexander uncovers in American legal writing a competing vision of property that has existed alongside the traditional conception Property Alexander argues has also been understood as proprietary a mechanism for creating and maintaining a properly ordered society This view of property has even operated in periods such as the second half of the nineteenth century when market forces seemed to dominate social and legal relationships In demonstrating how the understanding of property as a private basis for the public good has competed with the better known market oriented conception Alexander radically rewrites the history of property with significant implications for current political debates and recent Supreme Court decisions Republican Lens Joan Judge,2015-07-21 What can we learn about modern Chinese history by reading a marginalized set of materials from a widely neglected period In Republican Lens Joan Judge retrieves and revalorizes the vital brand of commercial culture that arose in the period surrounding China s 1911 Revolution Dismissed by high minded ideologues of the late 1910s and largely overlooked in subsequent scholarship this commercial culture has only recently begun to be rehabilitated in mainland China Judge uses one of its most striking innovative and continually mischaracterized products the journal Fun shibao The women s eastern times as a lens onto the early years of China s first Republic Redeeming both the value of the medium and the significance of the era she demonstrates the extent to which the commercial press channeled and helped constitute key epistemic and gender trends in China s revolutionary twentieth century The book develops a cross genre and inter media method for reading the periodical press and gaining access to the complexities of the past Drawing on the full materiality of the medium Judge reads cover art photographs advertisements and poetry editorials essays and readers columns in conjunction with and against one another as well as in their broader print historical and global contexts This yields insights into fundamental tensions that governed both the journal and the early Republic It also highlights processes central to the arc of twentieth century knowledge culture and social change the valorization and scientization of the notion of experience the public actualization of Republican Ladies and the amalgamation of Chinese medicine and scientific biomedicine It further revives the journal s editors authors medical experts artists and most notably its little known female contributors Republican Lens captures the ingenuity of a journal that captures the chaotic potentialities within China s early Republic and its global twentieth century
