Questioning the Language of Improvement and Reform in Education Nicole Mockler, Susan Groundwater-Smith, 2018-05-11 Questioning the Language of Improvement and Reform in Education challenges the language used in education by linking the language of both the public and professional domains with the changing intentions of the governance of education Exploring various issues which embody the many manifestations of the manner in which strident conservative language has captured the public view of education the book covers topics such as the importance of language in the context of educational practice the media's portrayal of teachers globally the role of students in the face of curriculum reform and the language used in educational policy worldwide The book addresses the ways in which the words improvement and reform have been appropriated and hollowed out by policymakers in order to justify globalised education policies Using international case studies and reports the authors argue that the employment of specific words masks the reality that new educational policies are regressive and require re examination while perpetuating the illusion that progressive educational practice is being brought to the fore Questioning the Language of Improvement and Reform in Education is a fascinating and original take on this topic which will be of great interest to educational practitioners policymakers and linguists

Parents and Virtues Sonya Charles,2019-03-11 Although individual parents face different issues Sonya Charles believes most parents want their children to be good people who are happy in their adult lives Parents and Virtues An Analysis of Moral Development and Parental Virtue starts from the question of how parents can raise their child to be a moral and flourishing person At first glance readers might think this question is better left to psychologists rather than philosophers The author proposes that Aristotle s ethical theory known as virtue theory has much to say on this issue Aristotle asks how we become moral people and how that relates to leading a good life In other words his motivating questions are very similar to the goals parents have for their children The first part of this book details what the basic components of Aristotle s theory can tell us about the project of parenting In the second part the focus shifts to consider some issues that present potential moral dilemmas for parents and discuss whether there are specific virtues we may want to use to guide parental actions Parents and Virtues will be of particular value to scholars and students who work on the ethics of parenthood virtue theory and bioethics

Edith Hall,2023-12-27 Rethinking Moral Status Steve Clarke,Hazem Zohny,Julian Savulescu,2021-08-05 Common sense morality implicitly assumes that reasonably clear distinctions can be drawn between the full moral status that is usually attributed to ordinary adult humans the partial moral status attributed to non human animals and the absence of moral status which is usually ascribed to machines and other artifacts These implicit assumptions have long been challenged and are now coming under further scrutiny as there are beings we have recently become able to create as well as beings that we may soon be able to create which blur the distinctions between human non human animal and non biological beings These beings include non human chimeras cyborgs human brain organoids post humans and human minds that have been uploaded into computers and onto the internet and artificial intelligence It is far from clear what moral status we should attribute to any of these beings There are a number of ways we could respond to the new challenges these technological developments raise we might revise our ordinary assumptions about what is needed for a being to possess full moral status or reject the assumption that there is a sharp distinction between full and partial moral status This volume explores such responses and provides a forum for philosophical reflection about ordinary presuppositions and intuitions about moral status Debating Moral Education Elizabeth Kiss,J.
