Building Community Disaster Resilience Through Private-Public Collaboration National Research Council, Division on Earth and Life Studies, Board on Earth Sciences and Resources, Geographical Sciences Committee, Committee on Private-Public Sector Collaboration to Enhance Community Disaster Resilience, 2011-03-17. Natural disasters including hurricanes, earthquakes, volcanic eruptions, and floods caused more than 220,000 deaths worldwide in the first half of 2010 and wreaked havoc on homes, buildings, and the environment. To withstand and recover from natural and human-caused disasters, it is essential that citizens and communities work together to anticipate threats, limit their effects, and rapidly restore functionality after a crisis. Increasing evidence indicates that collaboration between the private and public sectors could improve the ability of a community to prepare for, respond to, and recover from disasters. Several previous National Research Council reports have identified specific examples of the private and public sectors working cooperatively.

to reduce the effects of a disaster by implementing building codes retrofitting buildings improving community education or issuing extreme weather warnings State and federal governments have acknowledged the importance of collaboration between private and public organizations to develop planning for disaster preparedness and response Despite growing ad hoc experience across the country there is currently no comprehensive framework to guide private public collaboration focused on disaster preparedness response and recovery Building Community Disaster Resilience through Private Public Collaboration assesses the current state of private public sector collaboration dedicated to strengthening community resilience identifies gaps in knowledge and practice and recommends research that could be targeted for investment Specifically the book finds that local level private public collaboration is essential to the development of community resilience Sustainable and effective resilience focused private public collaboration is dependent on several basic principles that increase communication among all sectors of the community incorporate flexibility into collaborative networks and encourage regular reassessment of collaborative missions goals and practices
