Communities Of Consumption Place Geographical Mobility And Identification:

Sustainable Consumption Alistair Ulph, Dale Southerton, 2014-08-14 If global society is to address the many environmental and other sustainability challenges that confront us in the twenty first century such as climate change and water resources it will be necessary to make significant changes in our patterns of consumption production and distribution There is a growing realization that while changes in production and distribution are formidable the proposed solutions may not succeed unless it is possible to persuade individuals and households to change their patterns of consumption to make them more sustainable However there are significant differences in how key disciplines such as psychology neuroscience economics politics sociology anthropology and history conceptualise consumption empirically test their theoretical predictions and use these to inform policy makers across the private public and third sectors on how to make consumption more sustainable This book contains chapters from world leading experts in these different disciplines that seek to explain the perspectives on sustainable consumption of their disciplines suggest how these might be further enriched by taking on board some of the findings from other disciplines and consider what this implies for new policies to address the key sustainability challenges outlined above The book is dedicated to Professor Sir Partha Dasgupta one of the world s leading economists who has worked across a range of topics including environmental and resource economics and development economics and throughout his career has sought to incorporate into his economic thinking ideas from a range of other disciplines

Consuming Places JOHN Urry, 2002-03-11 In Consuming Places Urry explores the concept of society the nature of locality the significance of economic restructuring and how the concept of the rural are examined in relationship to place Undoing Place? Linda McDowell, 2020-10-07 Does geography affect our sense of self How are social characteristics mapped out on the ground And is there any authentic sense of place now or are we increasingly placeless Concentrating on the period between the end of the Second World War and the end of the century this Reader argues that there is a reciprocal relationship between the constitution of places and people What it means to be a man or a woman to have a nationality and a sense of place has been transformed and reinvented as our view of the world has changed The present is perceived as a time of fear a period in which all that is solid seems to melt into air while the 1950s are a site of nostalgia a period of clarity and certainty a time when people know their place Bringing together an interdisciplinary collection of articles for social and cultural geographers this Reader critically examines the argument that the close associations of the 1950s between place the home the community and the nation state and the social divisions gender class and nationality are breaking down in the 1990s Drawing out the oppositional movements in each decade it seeks to show how the supposed stability of one and the mobility of the other are exaggerated
