

Compiling from continuations is obvious

`(print (+ (* 3 (+ 2 2)) 5))` $:: 3 \cdot (2+2) + 5$

`(cc+ 2 2 #'(lambda(s)(cc* s 3 #'(lambda(r)(cc+ r 5 #'print)))))`
`(pushi 2)(pushi 2)(+) (pushi 3) (*) (pushi 5)(+) (print)`

In fact, this can be a very refreshing way of organizing a compiler or interpreter....

Compiling with Continuations Andrew W. Appel, 2007-02-01 The control and data flow of a program can be represented using continuations a concept from denotational semantics that has practical application in real compilers This book shows how continuation passing style is used as an intermediate representation on which to perform optimisations and program transformations Continuations can be used to compile most programming languages The method is illustrated in a compiler for the programming language Standard ML However prior knowledge of ML is not necessary as the author carefully explains each concept as it arises This is the first book to show how concepts from the theory of programming languages can be applied to the production of practical optimising compilers for modern languages like ML This book will be essential reading for compiler writers in both industry and academe as well as for students and researchers in programming language theory

Compiling Natural Semantics Mikael Pettersson, 2005-11-20 Natural Semantics has become a popular tool among programming language researchers for specifying many aspects of programming languages However due to the lack of practical tools for implementation the natural semantics formalism has so far largely been limited to theoretical applications This book introduces the rational meta language RML as a practical language for natural semantics specifications The main part of the work is devoted to the problem of compiling natural semantics actually RML into highly efficient code For this purpose an effective compilation strategy for RML is developed and implemented in the rml2c compiler This compiler ultimately produces low level C code Benchmarking results show that rml2c produced code is much faster than code resulting from compilers based on alternative implementation approaches contains extended versions of papers presented at the Third International Workshop on Logic Program Synthesis and Transformation LOPSTR 93 held in Louvain la Neuve in July 1993 Much of the success of the workshop is due to Yves Deville who served as Organizer and Chair Many people believe that machine support for the development and evolution of software will play a critical role in future software engineering environments Machine support requires the formalization of the artifacts and processes that arise during the software lifecycle Logic languages are unique in providing a uniform declarative notation for precisely describing application domains software requirements and for prescribing behavior via logic programs Program synthesis and transformation techniques formalize the process of developing correct and efficient programs from requirement specifications The natural intersection of these two fields of research has been the focus of the LOPSTR workshops The papers in this volume address many aspects of software development including deductive synthesis inductive synthesis transformations for optimizing programs and exploiting parallelism program analysis techniques particularly via abstract interpretation meta programming languages and tool support and various extensions to Prolog like languages admitting non Horn clauses functions and constraints Despite the progress represented in this volume the transition from laboratory to practice is fraught with difficulties Theoretical Aspects of Software Engineering Cristina David, Meng
