Marjorie was a 60-year-old woman who came to the hospice after a long and arduous hospital admission. She was a single woman who had enjoyed a rural farm life, including managing race horses and a large rural property.

Initially she was admitted to a NSW hospital with a Basal Cell Carcinoma that, despite initial surgical intervention, had infiltrated her brain tissue. Following a second surgical intervention she had been in an ICU, where she was intubated and suffering seizures. After a successful extubation and the use of anti convulsants, she was finally released from ICU. Unfortunately following the surgery she also developed a deep intracranial infection that was not resolving.

As her condition worsened, her brother requested palliative care consultancy input at the hospital. Marjorie had become unresponsive at the hospital and it was agreed at that point she would be transferred to the hospice for end-of-life care.

Marjorie had a range of symptoms which were causing issues. These included ongoing seizure activity, headaches, and a hyperactive delirium. Her pain medication, seizure medications and medications associated with her history of anxiety and depression were reviewed and revised numerous times. Whilst remaining very frail, dependent, and largely symptomatic, her condition stabilised.

Her family were her Enduring Power of Attorney and were clear that Marjorie was not for further burdensome interventions, including cannulation, transfer to another acute facility, surgical options or resuscitation. The hospice was the preferred place of death.

Her nursing care included; ongoing management of her worsening mobility and associated falls risk issues. Our Physiotherapist and Occupational Therapist reviewed her mobility on a regular basis, observing her with transfer use of the MRAT and the PCOC RUG ADL tools she was able to mobilise with a wheeled walker for some time, until she was eventually bed-bound or utilising a sling lifter, lifted into a fall out chair.

Marjorie had skin integrity issues due to her increase frailty and continence issues her care needs were modified as her condition deteriorated. Management of these continued to be integral to Marjorie's comfort and care. Her scalp wound was quite purulent and malodorous. Wound care had to accommodate these issues, as well as addressing aesthetic issues and Marjorie being confused was constantly attempting to remove dressing material. Nursing staff utilised a range of head wear to suit Marjorie's needs.

Marjorie's family were initially quite relieved that she was in a facility and that her illness was coming to an end, but after a week she awoke from her comatose state. This was challenging for the family. An early
