Defining Sustainable Development Common Future:

Defining Sustainable Development for Our Common Future Iris Borowy, 2013-12-04 The UN World Commission on Environment and Development chaired by former Norwegian Prime Minister Gro Harlem Brundtland alerted the world to the urgency of making progress toward economic development that could be sustained without depleting natural resources or harming the environment. Written by an international group of politicians, civil servants and experts on the environment and development, the Brundtland Report changed sustainable development from a physical notion to one based on social, economic and environmental issues. This book positions the Brundtland Commission as a key event within a longer series of international reactions to pressing problems of global poverty and environmental degradation. It shows that its report Our Common Future, published in 1987, covered much more than its definition of sustainable development as development that meets the needs of the present without compromising the ability of future generations to meet their own needs, for which it became best known. It also addressed a long list of issues which remain unresolved today. The book explores how the work of the Commission juggled contradictory expectations and world views which existed within the Commission and beyond, and drew on the concept of sustainable development as a way to reconcile profound differences. The result was both an immense success and disappointment. Coining an irresistibly simple definition enabled the Brundtland Commission to place sustainability firmly on the international agenda. This definition gained acceptability for a potentially divisive concept, but it also diverted attention from underlying demands for fundamental political and social changes. Meanwhile, the central message of the Commission, the need to make inconvenient sustainability considerations a part of global politics as much as of everyday life, has been sidelined. The book thus assesses to what extent the Brundtland Commission represented an immense step forward or a missed opportunity.

to reconcile profound differences The result was both an immense success and disappointment Coining an irresistibly simple definition enabled the Brundtland Commission to place sustainability firmly on the international agenda This definition gained acceptability for a potentially divisive concept but it also diverted attention from underlying demands for fundamental political and social changes Meanwhile the central message of the Commission the need to make inconvenient sustainability considerations a part of global politics as much as of everyday life has been side lined The book thus assesses to what extent the Brundtland Commission represented an immense step forward or a missed opportunity Sustainable Development of Denmark in the World, 1970-2020 Bo Fritzboøger, 2022-05-24 This book provides a holistic overview of the history of sustainable development in Denmark over the last fifty years covering a host of issues central to the Sustainable Development Goals SDGs ending poverty ensuring inclusive and equitable education reducing inequality making cities and settlements inclusive safe and resilient and fostering responsible production and consumption patterns to name a few It argues for a new framework of sustainability history one that is truly global in outlook As such it explores what truly global sustainable development would look like It considers how economic growth has been the driver for prosperity in the global north and considers whether sustainable development and continued economic growth are irreconcilable and what the future of sustainable development initiatives in Denmark might look like

What Next for Sustainable Development? James Meadowcroft, David Banister, Erling Holden, Oluf Langhelle, Kristin Linnerud, Geoffrey Gilpin, 2019 This book examines the international experience with sustainable development since the concept was brought to world wide attention in Our Common Future the 1987 report of the World Commission on Environment and Development Scholars from a variety of disciplinary backgrounds engage with three critical themes negotiating environmental limits equity environment and development and transitions and transformations In light of the 2030 Sustainable Development Goals recently adopted by the United Nations General Assembly they ask what lies ahead for sustainable development State Governance of Mining, Development and Sustainability Tracy-Lynn Field, 2019 States in mineral rich jurisdictions must promote mining as a development industry just as they must protect people and environment from the worst excesses of extractivism State Governance of Mining Development and Sustainability explores how the State s role in facilitating a developmental and sustainable mining industry has been defined In doing so this astute book considers the impact of the policies and laws of mineral rich States themselves multilateral international governance institutions industry associations and environmental justice advocates in the areas of property relations mineral taxation environmental management and mine closure

Evaluating Dam Sustainability: the Challenge of Lao Nam Theun 2 Wayne White, 2008-09-25 This book is both a needed methodology for evaluating the sustainability of hydropower dam projects and a case study of one of the more precedent setting dam developments of our time the Nam Theun 2 project in the Lao PDR It combines issues of biodiversity indigenous persons and poverty alleviation against the backdrop of the World Bank s search for legitimacy for returning to a role promoting massive dams Understanding Development Paul Hopper, 2012-02-27 Drawing on a wide range of case studies from across the globe this book explores such areas as health and population growth conflict and security global inequality and poverty fair trade and trade liberalization gender and education foreign aid and debt and sustainability and the environment This issues driven text focuses on the debates that have generated the most interest and passion among practitioners and non practitioners alike Always attentive to the contested and plural nature of the field it makes the case for a genuinely interdisciplinary approach which takes full account of the impact of globalization Publisher Quality Life Cycle Assessment in Sustainable Product Development Bożena Gajdzik, Radosław Wolniak, Dominika Siwiec, Remigiusz Gawlik, Andrzej Pacana, 2025-10-29 This groundbreaking book introduces the Quality Life Cycle Assessment QLCA model a novel approach that integrates product quality assessment and life cycle assessment LCA in sustainable manufacturing By incorporating environmental criteria alongside quality considerations during the virtual prototyping phase the QLCA model revolutionizes decision making for sustainable product development This book bridges the gap between product improvement and LCA application addressing the critical need for sustainability in modern manufacturing Leveraging digital technologies such as Big Data Data Analytics and Digital Twin this book demonstrates how to construct virtual product models with comprehensive LCA integration The QLCA model particularly suited for smart factories supports innovation and informed decision making in sustainable product development Aimed at students research and development managers and engineers this volume offers practical guidance on balancing customer satisfaction with environmental impact throughout a product s life cycle By elucidating the application of LCA in product life cycle assessment and its combination with quality considerations during prototyping this book provides invaluable insights for practitioners navigating the complexities of sustainable manufacturing in the digital age Principles of Environmental Economics Ahmed M. Hussen, 2004 This text offers a systematic exposition of environmental and natural resource economics It considers a variety of real world examples to illustrate the policy relevance and implications of key economic and ecological concepts Copyright Law and the Progress of Science and the Useful Arts A. Ng, 2011-01-01 The American Constitution empowers Congress to enact copyright laws to promote the progress of science and the useful arts This book offers the first in depth analysis of the connection between copyright law as a legal institution and the constitutional goal of promoting social and cultural advancement Focusing on the relationship between this explicit purpose and the normative uses and production of creative works Alina Ng argues that a robust copyright system that embodies moral and ethical principles is necessary to protect the different values and expectations of authors publishers and users of creative works The author demonstrates that a more nuanced understanding of property rights and statutory privileges as bearing different types of entitlements is critical to the sustainable development of society and culture at both national and international levels She posits that as communication technologies become ubiquitous and facilitate greater connectivity between authors and their readers the notion of authorship as a creative endeavor producing works with significant influence upon society and culture must form the central tenet of the copyright system This unique approach to copyright law will be of interest to legal cultural and literary scholars as well as others interested in the relationship between creativity authorship and progress
