Darwins Worms On Life Stories And Death Stories:

Darwin's Worms Adam Phillips, 2001-02-07 A startlingly original psychoanalytic writer takes on death loss and the telling of life stories through an exploration of Darwin and Freud Darwin's Worms Adam Phillips, 2009-06-16 Adam Phillips has been called the psychotherapist of the floating world and the closest thing we have to a philosopher of happiness His style is epigrammatic his intelligence electric His new book Darwin's Worms uses the biographical details of Darwin's and Freud's lives to examine endings suffering mortality extinction and death Both Freud and Darwin were interested in how destruction conserves life They took their inspiration from fossils or from half remembered dreams Each told a story that has altered our perception of our lives For Darwin Phillips explains the story to tell was how species can drift towards extinction for Freud the story was how the individual tended to and tended towards his own death In each case it is a death story that uniquely illuminates the life story Darwin's Love of Life Karen L. Harel, 2022-10-25 Biophilia the love of life encompasses the drive to survive a sense of kinship with all life forms and an instinct for beauty In this unconventional book Kay Harel uses biophilia as a lens to explore Charles Darwin's life and thought in deeply original ways In a set of interrelated essays she considers how the love of life enabled him to see otherwise unseen evolutionary truths Harel traces the influence of biophilia on Darwin's views of dogs facts thought emotion and beauty informed by little known material from his private notebooks She argues that much of what Darwin described envisioned and felt was biophilia in action Closing the book is a profile of Darwin's marriage to Emma Wedgwood his first cousin a woman gifted in music and medicine who shared her husband's love of life Harel's meditative playful and lyrical musings draw on the tools of varied disciplines aesthetics astronomy biology evolutionary theory history of science philosophy psychiatry and more while remaining unbounded by any particular one Taking unexpected paths to recast a figure we thought we knew this book offers readers a different Darwin a man full of love joy awe humility curiosity and a zest for living Ancient Christian Ecopoetics Virginia Burrus, 2018-09-14 In our age of ecological crisis what insights if any can we expect to find by looking to our past Perhaps suggests Virginia Burrus early Christianity might yield usable insights Turning aside from the familiar specter of Christianity's human centered theology of dominion Burrus directs our attention to aspects of ancient Christian thought and practice that remain strange and alien Drawn to excess and transgression in search of transformation early Christians creatively reimaged the universe and the human cultivating relationships with a wide range of other beings animal vegetable and mineral angelic and demonic divine and earthly large and small In Ancient Christian Ecopoetics Burrus facilitates a provocative encounter between early Christian theology and contemporary ecological thought In the first section she explores how the mysterious figure of khora drawn from Plato's Timaeus haunts Christian and Jewish accounts of a creation envisioned as varyingly monstrous unstable and unknowable In the second section she explores how hagiographical literature queers notions of nature and places the very category of the human into question in part by foregrounding the saint's animality in part by writing the saint into the landscape The third section considers material objects as small as portable relics and icons as large as church and monastery complexes Ancient Christians considered all of these animate beings simultaneously powerful and vulnerable protective and in need of protection lovable and loving Viewed through the shifting lenses of an ancient ecopoetics Burrus demonstrates how humans both loomed large and shrank to invisibility absorbed in the rapture of a strange and animate ecology

Notes on Vermin Caroline Hovanec, 2025-01-28 Vermin rats cockroaches pigeons mosquitoes and other pests are to most people objects of disgust And vermin metaphors likening human beings to these loathed creatures appear in the ugliest forms of political rhetoric Indeed vermin imagery has often been used to denigrate poor foreign or racialized people Yet many writers have reclaimed vermin giving new meaning to creeping rodents swarming insects and wriggling worms Notes on Vermin is an atlas of the literary vermin that appear in modern and contemporary literature from Franz Kafka's gigantic insect to Richard Wright's city rats to Namwali Serpell's storytelling mosquitoes As parasites trespassers and collectives vermin animals prove useful to writers who seek to represent life in the margins of power Drawing on psychoanalysis cultural studies eco Marxism and biopolitics this book explores four uses for literary vermin as figures for the repressed thought the uncommitted fugitive the freeloading parasite and the surplus life In a series of short accessible interlinked essays Notes on Vermin explores what animal pests can show us about our cultures our environments and ourselves

Soldiers Once and Still Alex Vernon, 2007-08-15 As the world enters a new century as it embarks on new wars and sees new developments in the waging of war reconsiderations of the last century's legacy of warfare are necessary to our understanding of the current world order In Soldiers Once and Still Alex Vernon looks back through the twentieth century in order to confront issues of self and community in veterans literature exploring how war and the military have shaped the identities of Ernest Hemingway James Salter and Tim O'Brien three of the twentieth century's most respected authors Vernon specifically explores the various ways war and the military through both cultural and personal experience have affected social and gender identities and dynamics in each author's work Hemingway Salter and O'Brien form the core of Soldiers Once and Still because each represents a different warring generation of twentieth century America World War I with Hemingway World War II and Korea with Salter and Vietnam with O'Brien Each author also represents a different literary voice of the twentieth century from modern to mid century to postmodern and each presents a different battlefield experience Hemingway as noncombatant Salter as air force fighter pilot and O'Brien as army grunt War's pervasive influence on the individual means that for veterans turned writers like Hemingway Salter and O'Brien the war experience infiltrates their entire body of writing their works can be seen not only as war literature but also as veterans literature As such their entire postwar oeuvre regardless of whether an individual work explicitly addresses the war or the military is open to Vernon's exploration of war society gender and literary history Vernon's own experiences as a soldier a veteran a writer and a critic inform this enlightening critique of American literature offering students and scholars of American literature and war studies an invaluable tool for understanding war's effects on the veteran writer and his society Re-Thinking Agency Joanna Godlewicz-Adamiec, Paweł Piszczatowski, 2024-10-07 The book explores the multi faceted nature of contemporary reflections on agency focusing on various discursive practices that shape the posthumanist approach to the relationship between the human and non human world from a planetary perspective The chapters delve into critical human animal studies examine new non anthropocentric identity constructs and offer analyses that reinterpret meanings through semiotic inversions and challenge static cultural patterns The book concludes with discussions on decolonization practices that aim to liberate agency from oppressive systems particularly those dominated by imperial phallogocentrism Charles Darwin and Victorian Visual Culture Jonathan Smith, 2006-07-06 A highly illustrated account of Darwin's visual representations of his theories and their influence on Victorian literature art and culture first published in 2006 Victorian Pain Rachel Ablow, 2020-06-09 The nineteenth century introduced developments in science and medicine that made the eradication of pain conceivable for the first time This new understanding of pain brought with it a complex set of moral and philosophical dilemmas If pain serves no obvious purpose how do we reconcile its existence with a well ordered universe Examining how writers of the day engaged with such questions Victorian Pain offers a compelling new literary and philosophical history of modern pain Rachel Ablow provides close readings of novelists Charlotte Bront and Thomas Hardy and political and natural philosophers John Stuart Mill Harriet Martineau and Charles Darwin as well as a variety of medical scientific and popular writers of the Victorian age She explores how discussions of pain served as investigations into the status of persons and the nature and parameters of social life No longer conceivable as divine trial or punishment pain in the nineteenth century came to seem instead like a historical accident suggesting little or nothing about the individual who suffers A landmark study of Victorian literature and the history of pain Victorian Pain shows how these writers came to see pain as a social as well as a personal problem Rather than simply self evident to the sufferer and unknowable to anyone else pain was also understood to be produced between persons and even perhaps by the fictions they read Darwin and the Memory of the Human Cannon Schmitt, 2009-05-29 This book shows how Victorian naturalists transformed their encounters with South America into influential accounts of biological change
