

mood & symptom monitoring

The purpose of self monitoring is to help you become more aware of yourself, your moods, and what's going on in your life so that you can better manage your illness, make informed decisions, prevent further illness episodes, and ultimately have the quality of life you want. Basically, self-monitoring involves identifying subtle changes in your daily mood and being aware if you are experiencing hypomanic, manic, and depressive symptoms. Self-monitoring doesn't take long to do and you'll find that it gets easier once you include it in your daily routine.

Mood Monitoring

The first step to self monitoring is monitoring your mood for the day. Ask yourself, "How did I feel today? Was my mood within the normal range, or was I feeling slightly low or high? How low? How high?" Rate your mood, between -5 (depressed) and +5 (manic). Try to rate your mood at the same time everyday. Use the mood graph below to monitor your moods. Try it for a week and see if you can identify any pattern in your mood fluctuations.

You might also want to take note of the circumstances in which you experienced particularly high or low moods. Bring your completed mood graph to your doctor or mental health professional and discuss your observations with them.

Symptom Monitoring

Another way of monitoring yourself is to identify and be aware of any signs and symptoms associated with a depressive, manic, or mixed episode that you might be experiencing. Use the worksheet below to record any symptoms that might have interfered with most of your day-to-day activities. If you experience a number of these symptoms over a few days, you might want to consider taking some action. Talk to your doctor or mental health professional about what you can do to prevent a full-blown mood episode.
