Database Nation Simson Garfinkel, 2000-12-04 Fifty years ago in 1984 George Orwell imagined a future in which privacy was demolished by a totalitarian state that used spies video surveillance historical revisionism and control over the media to maintain its power Those who worry about personal privacy and identity especially in this day of technologies that encroach upon these rights still use Orwell's Big Brother language to discuss privacy issues But the reality is that the age of a monolithic Big Brother is over And yet the threats are perhaps even more likely to destroy the rights we've assumed were ours Database Nation The Death of Privacy in the 21st Century shows how in these early years of the 21st century advances in technology endanger our privacy in ways never before imagined Direct marketers and retailers track our every purchase surveillance cameras observe our movements mobile phones will soon report our location to those who want to track us government eavesdroppers listen in on private communications misused medical records turn our bodies and our histories against us and linked databases assemble detailed consumer profiles used to predict and influence our behavior Privacy the most basic of our civil rights is in grave peril Simson Garfinkel journalist entrepreneur and international authority on computer security has devoted his career to testing new technologies and warning about their implications This newly revised update of the popular hardcover edition of Database Nation is his compelling account of how invasive technologies will affect our lives in the coming years It's a timely far reaching entertaining and thought provoking look at the serious threats to privacy facing us today The book poses a disturbing question how can we protect our basic rights to privacy identity and autonomy when technology is making invasion and control easier than ever before Garfinkel's captivating blend of journalism storytelling and futurism is a call to arms It will frighten entertain and ultimately convince us that we must take action now to protect our privacy and identity before it's too late

Chasteen, William D. Wheaton, Philip C. Cooley, Laxminarayana Ganapathi, Diane K. Wagener, 2011-02-02 In 2005 RTI International researchers developed methods to generate synthesized population data on US households for the US Synthesized Population Database These data are used in agent based modeling which simulates large scale social networks to test how changes in the behaviors of individuals affect the overall network Group quarters are residences where individuals live in close proximity and interact frequently Although the Synthesized Population Database represents the population living in households data for the nation s group quarters residents are not easily quantified because of US Census Bureau reporting methods designed to protect individuals privacy Including group quarters population data can be an important factor in agent based modeling because the number of residents and the frequency of their interactions are variables that directly affect modeling results Particularly with infectious disease modeling the increased frequency of agent interaction may increase the probability of infectious disease transmission between individuals and the probability of disease outbreaks This report reviews our methods to synthesize data on group quarters residents to match US Census Bureau data Our goal in developing the Group Quarters Population Database was to enable its use with RTI s US Synthesized Population Database in the Modeling of Infectious Diseases Agent Study
