Participation, Community, and Public Policy in a Virginia Suburb Patricia Farrell Donahue,2017-09-25

Participation Community and Public Policy in a Virginia Suburb Of Our Own Making challenges the conventional wisdom that we can diagnose the vitality of modern American communities using just the few participation trends routinely tracked in social research such as voting or volunteering Through the story of Pimmit Hills Virginia author Patricia Donahue shows that a community is really the sum of numerous types of participation and that analyzing a greater variety of activities can help us better understand any community Pimmit Hills was one of the first federally financed subdivisions built for World War II veterans and the residents stories will be familiar to the millions who grew up in middle class suburbs At the same time its proximity to Washington D C gave these residents front row seats to and sometimes supporting roles in the launch of national policies that continue to shape America today 2014 LEEP Event, Editorial & Promotional Calendar Laura Dawn

Innovations in Community-Based Crime Prevention Robert J. Stokes, Charlotte Gill, 2020-07-30
This book explores multi year community based crime prevention initiatives in the United States from their design and implementation through 5 year follow ups
It provides an overview of programs of various sizes affecting diverse communities from urban to rural environments larger and smaller populations with a range of site specific problems
The research is based on a United States federally funded program called the Byrne Criminal Justice Initiative BJCI which began in 2012 and has funded programs in 65 communities across 28 states and 61 cities
This book serves to document the process challenges and lessons learned from the design and implementation of this innovative program
It covers researcher practitioner partnerships crime prevention planning processes programming implementation and issues related to sustainability of community policing initiatives that transcend institutional barriers and leadership turnover
Through researcher partnerships at each site it provides a rich dataset for understanding and comparing the social and economic problems that contribute to criminality as well as the conditions where prosocial behavior and collective efficacy thrive
It also examines the future of this federally funded program going forward in a new Presidential administration
This work will be of interest to researchers in criminology and criminal justice particularly with an interest in translational applied criminology and crime prevention as well as related fields such as public policy urban planning and sociology
