

Competing theories

- Some ludicrous theories are that humans evolved from aquatic apes and tears helped humans to live in saltwater.
- Others persist that crying removes toxic substances from the blood that builds up during times of stress.
- More plausible theories are that tears trigger social bonding and human connection.

John Losee

Competing Theories Of Interpretation Competing Theories Of Interpretation:

Competing Theories of Interpretation Robert E. Hooberman, 2008 The field of psychoanalytically oriented psychotherapy has tended to fragment into disparate theoretical orientations that often find little in common with each other though each sheds light on important aspects of the psyche This book addresses the question how can these disparate orientations best be brought together in the service of interpretation Starting from the conviction that treatment becomes more effective and comprehensive if as many aspects of the psyche as possible are addressed Robert Hooberman proposes that character structure an aspect of psychic functioning traditionally given short shrift in psychoanalytic discourse can provide a framework in which multiple theoretical perspectives can have their say Numerous case examples are used for illustration

Theories of Scientific Progress John Losee, 2004 There seems little doubt that we have made progress in scientific theories but how Theories of Scientific Progress presents the arguments covers interpretations of scientific progress and discusses the latest contemporary debates The Structure of Scientific Theories Frederick Suppe, 1977 A clear and comprehensive introduction to contemporary philosophy of science American Scientist The best account of scientific theory now available one that surely commends itself to every philosopher of science with the slightest interest in metaphysics Review of Mathematics It should certainly be of interest to those teaching Institutional Competition between Common Law and Civil Law Michèle Schmiegelow, Henrik Schmiegelow, 2014-05-27 This book addresses two countervailing challenges to theory and policy in law and economics The first is the rise of legal origins theory which denies the comparative law view of convergence between common law and civil law by the assertion of an economic superiority of common law The second is the series of economic crises in the very financial markets on which that assertion was based Both trends unsettled certainties about the rule of law and institutional economics Meeting legal origins theory in its main areas of political science sociology and economics the book extends the interdisciplinary reach to neglected aspects of comparative law legal history dynamic econometric analysis and quasi natural experiments with counterfactual evidence of different institutional regimes in divided countries These combined methodological tools make tests of the economic impact of different legal origins much more reliable This is shown for developed and newly industrialized countries as well as developing transforming and emerging countries with or without financial center advantage affected or not by financial crises The Asian financial crises and the American subprime crisis have been or could have been resolved using the resources of common law or civil law These cases and data on access to justice in Africa Asia and Latin America reveal the problem of substantive law remaining law on the books without efficient procedural rules and judicial structures The single most striking common law civil law divide is that lawyer dominated common law procedure is slower and costlier than judge managed civil law procedure Countries as diverse as the Netherlands Japan and China show functional interaction between culture and law in legal reforms Such interaction can reduce the occurrence of legal disputes as well as facilitate their resolution It can use economic crises as catalysts for legal reforms or rely on regional integration and it should replace the discredited method of legal transplants by sustained dialogue between legal advisors and all actors involved in legal reforms Legal Secrets Kim Lane Scheppele, 1988 Does the seller of a house have to tell the buyer that the water is turned off twelve hours a day Does the buyer of a great quantity of tobacco have to inform the seller that the military blockade of the local port which had depressed tobacco sales and lowered prices is about to end Courts say yes in the first case no in the second How can we understand the difference in judgments And what does it say about whether the psychiatrist should disclose to his patient's girlfriend that the patient wants to kill her Kim Lane Scheppele answers the question Which secrets are legal secrets and what makes them so She challenges the economic theory of law which argues that judges decide cases in ways that maximize efficiency and she shows that judges use equality as an important principle in their decisions In the course of thinking about secrets Scheppele also explores broader questions about judicial reasoning how judges find meaning in legal texts and how they infuse every fact summary with the values of their legal culture Finally the specific insights about secrecy are shown to be consistent with a general moral theory of law that indicates what the content of law should be if the law is to be legitimate a theory that sees legal justification as the opportunity to attract consent This is more than a book about secrets It is also a book about the limits of an economic view of law Ultimately it is a work in constructive legal theory one that draws on moral philosophy sociology economics and political theory to develop a new view of legal interpretation and legal morality

Types of Interpretation in the Aesthetic Disciplines Staffan Carlshamre, Anders Pettersson, 2003 An anthology that reveals that interpretation of literature and the arts is done from different perspectives and often with different objectives so that attempts to provide unified analyses of the logic of such interpretation will always be unsuccessful Competition Theory in Ecology Peter A. Abrams, 2022-08-25 Competition between species arises when two or more species share at least some of the same limited resources It is likely to affect all species as well as many higher level aspects of community and ecosystem dynamics Interspecific competition shares many of the same features as density dependence intraspecific competition and evolution competition between genotypes In spite of this a robust theoretical framework is not yet in place to develop a more coherent understanding of this important interaction Despite its prominence in the ecological literature the theory seems to have lost direction in recent decades with many synthetic papers promoting outdated ideas failing to use resource based models and having little utility in applied fields such as conservation and environmental management Competition theory has done little to incorporate new findings regarding consumer resource interactions in the context of larger food webs containing behaviourally or evolutionarily adapting components Overly simple models and methods of analysis continue to be influential Competition Theory in Ecology represents a timely opportunity to address these shortcomings and suggests a more useful approach to modelling that can provide a basis for future models that have greater predictive ability in both ecology and evolution The book concludes with some broader observations on the lack of agreement on general principles to use in constructing mathematical models to help understand ecological systems It argues that a more open discussion and debate of the underlying structure of ecological theory is now urgently required to move the field forward Railway Regulation: Rail-way competition; Theory and practice of rate-making Isaiah Leo Sharfman,1919

Explanation and Experiment in Social Psychological Science John D. Greenwood,2012-12-06 This book is about explanation and experiment in a science of human action It aims to provide a philosophy of social psychological science that both embodies sound principles of scientific reasoning and is sensitive to the social psychological dimensions of human action The guiding principle of this book is the belief that the logical forms of causal explanation and experimental evaluation can be effectively employed in the scientific analysis of meaningful human action According to most accounts social psychological science has been in a more or less constant state of crisis for the past decades having been subject to a host of criticisms on moral political methodological and philosophical grounds Many of these critiques have been directed against the still dominant conception of social psychological enquiry as a causal and objective scientific discipline that is closely analogous to if not to be identified as a branch of the natural sciences Thus many of the most vigorous debates have concerned the nature of explanation and the utility of experimentation in a social psychological discipline The Rule of Law Ian Shapiro,1995-07-01 From the sprawling remnants of the Soviet empire to the southern tip of Africa attempts are underway to replace arbitrary political regimes with governments constrained by the rule of law This ideal which subordinates the wills of individuals social movements and even sometimes democratically elected majorities to the requirements of law is here explored by leading legal and political thinkers Part I of The Rule of Law examines the interplay of democracy and the rule of law while Part II focusses on the centuries old debate about the meaning of the rule of law itself Part III takes up the constraints that rationality exercises on the rule of law If the rule of law is desirable partly because it is rational then departures from that rule might also be desirable in the event that they can be shown to be rational Part IV concentrates on the limits of the rule of law considering the tensions between liberalism and the rule of law which exist despite the fact that reasoned commitment to the rule of the law is preeminently a liberal commitment Contributing to the volume are Robert A Burt Yale University Steven J Burton University of Iowa William N Eskridge Jr Georgetown University John Ferejohn Stanford University Richard Flathman Johns Hopkins University Gerald F Gaus University of Minnesota Duluth Jean Hampton University of Arizona Russell Hardin University of Chicago James Johnson University of Rochester Jack Knight Washington University Stephen Macedo Harvard University David Schmitz Yale University Lawrence B Solum Loyola Marymount University Michael Walzer Princeton University Catherine Valcke University of Toronto and Michael P Zuckert Carleton College
