Electric Current

1. Water doesn't flow in the pipe when (a) both ends are at the same level. Another way of saying this is that water will not flow in the pipe when both ends have the same potential energy (PE). Similarly, charge will not flow in a conductor if both ends of the conductor are at the same electric potential. But tip the water pipe and increase the PE of one side so there is a difference in PE across the ends of the pipe, as in (b), and water will flow. Similarly, increase the electric potential of one end of an electric conductor so there is a potential difference across the ends, and charge will flow.

- a. The units of electric potential difference are (volts) (amperes) (ohms) (watts)
- b. It is common to call electric potential difference (voltage) (amperage) (wattage)
- c. The flow of electric charge is called electric (voltage) (current) (power),
and is measured in
(volts) (amperes) (ohms) (watts)

A VOLT IS A UNIT OF Energy ^{Field}
AND AN AMPERE IS A UNIT OF Current

DOES VOLTAGE CAUSE CURRENT,
OR DOES CURRENT CAUSE VOLTAGE?
WHICH IS THE CAUSE AND WHICH IS THE EFFECT?

2. Complete the statements:

- a. A current of 1 ampere is a flow of charge at the rate of 1 coulomb per second.
- b. When a charge of 15 C flows through any area in a circuit each second, the current is 15 A.
- c. One volt is the potential difference between two points if 1 joule of energy is needed to move
1 coulomb of charge between the two points.
- d. When a lamp is plugged into a 120-V socket, each coulomb of charge that flows in the circuit is raised to a potential energy of 120 joules.
- e. Which offers more resistance to water flow, a wide pipe or a narrow pipe? Narrow.
Similarly, which offers more resistance to the flow of charge, a thick wire or a thin wire?
Thin

approaches that are not possible or that are less accessible when students are in traditional classrooms without technology. In this first volume of the series Research Methods for Educational Technology (RMET), the contributing authors draw upon examples of their work evaluating the implementation and development of educational technology as well as the impact of policies and programs in this field. Within this volume, several authors have written about the implementation and evaluation of technology across cultures and national boundaries, pointing to an area of research that will rapidly expand in this decade. The concern for meeting the needs of policymakers is also apparent in several of these chapters, but there is tension between providing them with positive results to support their efforts and reexamining the questions they are asking and how these questions are developed. We know that evaluation is not the extended arm of public relations, and yet it becomes clear that evaluators are often asked to demonstrate a project is successful on the threat that the funding will be cut. While this decision-making process fits the timetable of the fiscal year, it does not acknowledge that evaluation can be formative and strengthen programs. This timetable also ignores the investment of time that is needed when implementing innovations like the Internet into teaching and learning. Many of the authors included in this volume write from the context of evaluating federally funded programs, and they provide valuable insight for future projects which are created and evaluated at the state level. As technology initiatives are developed and funded outside of the federal arena, more evaluators will be called upon. From approaches developed from federally funded projects, we can build upon these methods and models for evaluation within regional projects to answer questions related to budgets and accountability. As we answer these immediate questions, we can move forward to examine the long-term impact of technology and the possibility that exercises in conformity will replace the adventure of human enlightenment for our children.

Working with High-Risk Youth Peter Smyth, 2023-12-28. This fully revised and expanded second edition focusses on high-risk youth whose struggles include neglect and abuse, alcohol and drug abuse, the risk of being exploited, mental health issues, and the inability to self-regulate and trust. A population of youth that government child welfare services and community agencies struggle to serve adequately. The focus has traditionally been on punishment, consequence interventions, and demanding compliance, but experience and research shows that they can be better served through relationship-based practice incorporating harm reduction principles, resiliency, and strength-based approaches, community collaboration, and an understanding that these youth typically come from experiences of early trauma impacting their brain development and their ability to form attachments. With new material on attachment trauma and brain development, the perfect storm youth, how to end relationships, shame, and societal divisions, this book provides an overview of the Get Connected practice framework and philosophy which has been successfully used in Canada and New Zealand and provides strategies for engaging and working with the most disconnected challenging and troubled youth in society It will be required reading for all agency service providers community outreach workers youth workers group home workers probation officers foster parents adoptive parents service navigators counsellors addictions workers mental health workers teachers youth group leaders and youth pastors advisors in religious settings and camp counsellors
