

AIR INTAKE

Dirt induced through improperly installed, poorly serviced or inadequate air cleaned elements wears out more engines than does long hours of operation. Even a small amount of dirt will wear out a set of piston rings in a few hours. Also, a clogged element causes a richer fuel mixture which may lead to formation of harmful sludge deposits. Always check carburetor or air filter when air cleaner is removed.

DRY AIR CLEANERS

SERVICE - REPLACEMENT: Dry type elements should be replaced after 100 to 200 hours of engine operation under good clean air conditions-servicing and replace element more frequently under extremely dusty or dirty conditions. Dry elements should be cleaned after about each 50 hours of operation remove element and tap lightly on a flat surface to remove loose surface dirt. Replace element if dirt does not drop off easily. Do not wash dry elements in any liquid or attempt to blow dirt off with air hose as this will puncture filter element. Gently tumble new element-do not use if gasket not flats are bent or broken. Check the following when installing new or service elements:

1. Back plate must be securely tightened to carburetor. Replace back plate if bent or cracked.
2. Outer surface of element must be flat against back plate and cover to seal effectively.
3. Wing nut must be finger tight—don't overtighten.

PRECLEANERS: Precleaners are available for use with dry type air cleaners. The precleaner traps much of the dirt, providing a long service life for the dry element thereby extending its life. No modification is needed—the precleaner slips right over the dry element. Servicing of the precleaner is accomplished by washing it in soap and water then, after rinsing and squeezing out excess water, allowing it to air dry (whenever possible), then reinstall it over element. DO NOT oil this type precleaner.
