Understanding Information History William Aspray, 2023-11-28 Microhistory is a technique that has been used effectively by writers of both fiction and nonfiction It enables the author to cut through the complexities of large swaths of history by focusing on a particular time and place Microhistories are particularly useful in historical study when a subfield has recently arisen and there are not yet enough monographic studies from which to draw general patterns This microhistory focuses on a single year 1920 across the United States with the goal of understanding the various roles of information in this society It gives greater emphasis to the informational aspects of traditional historical topics such as farming government bureaucracy the Spanish flu pandemic and Prohibition and it gives greater attention to information rich topics such as libraries and museums schools and colleges the financial services and office machinery industries scientific research institutions and management consultancies

Reading Marie al-Khazen's Photographs Yasmine Nachabe Taan, 2020-11-26 The Lebanese photographer Marie al Khazen seized every opportunity to use her camera during the years that she was active between 1920 and 1940 She not only documented her travels around tourist sites in Lebanon but also sought creative experimentation with her camera by staging scenes manipulating shadows and superimposing negatives to produce different effects in her prints Within her photographs bedouins and European friends peasants and landlords men and women comfortably share the same space Her photographs include an intriguing collection portraying her family and friends living their everyday lives in 1920s and 30s Zgharta a village in the north of Lebanon Yasmine Nachabe Taan explores these photographs emphasizing the ways in which notions of gender and class are inscribed within them and revealing how they are charged with symbols of women's emancipation to today's viewers through women's presence as individuals separate from family restrictions of that time Images in which women are depicted smoking cigarettes driving cars riding horses and accompanying men on hunting trips counteract the common ways in which women were portrayed in contemporary Lebanon
