New Directions in Educational Leadership Theory Scott Eacott, Colin Evers, 2018-02-02 Educational leadership has a rich history of epistemological debate From the Theory Movement of the 1950 1960s through to Greenfield s critique of logical empiricism in the 1970s the emergence of Bates and Foster s Critical Theory of educational administration in the 1980s and Evers and Lakomski s naturalistic coherentism from 1990 to the present time debates about ways of knowing doing and being in the social world have been central to advancing scholarship However since the publication of Evers and Lakomski s work questions of the epistemological preliminaries of research have become somewhat marginalised This is not to suggest that such discussions are not taking place but rather that they have been sporadic and piecemeal In New Directions in Educational Leadership Theory the contributors sketch possible alternatives for advancing scholarship in educational leadership The coherence of this volume comes not from the adoption of a single theoretical lens but rather from its engagement with epistemology ontology and methodology The choice of the plural alternatives is deliberate and its use is to evoke the message that there is more than one way to advance knowledge The approaches adopted across this collection offer fruitful directions for the field and hopefully will stimulate substantive dialogue and debate in the interest of advancing knowledge This book was originally published as a special issue of Educational Philosophy and Theory

Education and the Political Tomasz Szukdlarek, 2013-11-19 The essays in this collection address the relation between education and politics in new ways Rather than understanding education simply as the object of political decision making or as preparation for politics the authors of this volume see education as implicated in social conflicts and in the political processes that produce and change social structures Education then is a practice that reconfigures the relations between subjectivities and the political The collection focuses on several critical cases and theoretical debates where the relation between education and politics demands new articulations It explores the potential of theoretical languages proposed by Ranci re Laclau Derrida Mouffe Bakhtin and other thinkers whose work has not yet been fully recognized in its pedagogical meaning

Complexity Theory and the Politics of Education, 2010-01-01 Complexity theory has become a major influence in discussions about the theory and practice of education This book focuses on a question which so far has received relatively little attention in such discussions which is the question of the politics of complexity The chapters in this book engage with this question in a range of different ways

Whereas some contributions make a case for the promotion of complexity in education others focus more explicitly on questions concerning the reduction of complexity in and through education The chapters do so using theoretical historical and empirical arguments paying attention to a range of different educational settings including early childhood education school education post compulsory education lifelong learning and work based education and focusing on different aspects of these practices such as curriculum pedagogy assessment architecture and management Taken together the chapters not only reveal the potential of complexity for engaging with questions about the politics of education in new and different ways They also provide examples of a more reflexive engagement with the politics of complexity in education itself Complexity

Theory and the Philosophy of Education Mark Mason, 2009-02-23 A collection of scholarly essays Complexity Theory and the Philosophy of Education provides an accessible theoretical introduction to the topic of complexity theory while considering its broader implications for educational change Explains the contributions of complexity theory to philosophy of education curriculum and educational research Brings together new research by an international team of contributors Debates issues ranging from the culture of curriculum to the implications of work of key philosophers such as Foucault and John Dewey for educational change Demonstrates how social scientists and social and education policy makers are drawing on complexity theory to answer questions such as why is it that education decision makers are so resistant to change how does change in education happen and what does it take to make these changes sustainable Considers changes in use of complexity theory developed principally in the fields of physics biology chemistry and economics and now being applied more broadly to the social sciences and to the study of education Neuroscience and Education Clarence Joldersma, 2016-03-02 This volume makes a philosophical contribution to the application of neuroscience in education It frames neuroscience research in novel ways around educational conceptualizing and practices while also taking a critical look at conceptual problems in neuroeducation and at the economic reasons driving the mind brain education movement It offers alternative approaches for situating neuroscience in educational research and practice including non reductionist models drawing from Dewey and phenomenological philosophers such as Martin Heidegger and Merleau Ponty The volume gathers together an international bevy of leading philosophers of education who are in a unique position to contribute conceptually rich and theoretically framed insight on these new developments The essays form an emerging dialogue to be used within philosophy of education as well as neuroeducation educational psychology teacher education and curriculum studies Education in an Age of

Nihilism Nigel Blake, Paul Smeyers, Richard Smith, Paul Standish, 2012-12-06 This book addresses concerns about educational and moral standards in a world increasingly characterised by nihilism On the one hand there is widespread anxiety that standards are falling on the other new machinery of accountability and inspection to show that they are not The authors in this book state that we cannot avoid nihilism if we are simply laissez faire about values neither can we reduce them to standards of performance nor must we return to traditional values They state that we need to create a new set of values based on a critical assessment of contemporary practice in the light of a number of philosophical texts that address the question of nihilism including the work of Nietzsche
