Car Ecu Repair Training:

Work and Learning in Micro Car-repair Enterprises Harry van den Tillaart, Sjaak van den Berg, John Warmerdam, 1998
Work and learning in microenterprises in the car repair industries of four European Community EC countries were examined through 21 case studies of firms with 10 or fewer employees 6 firms in Ireland and 5 each in Greece the Netherlands and Spain Structured interviews were conducted with each firm's owner and 60 motor vehicle mechanics at the 21 firms Firms were not selected randomly rather they were selected because of their active use of training to adapt their staff to technological economic and organizational change The sample included franchise and nonfranchise firms All 21 microfirms studied were simultaneously pursuing growth strategies and the strategy of specialization in networks Of the 60 mechanics interviewed 43 had initial vocational education for the sector Except for the apprentices all 43 mechanics participated in continuing training during the previous 3 years Of the 17 mechanics with no initial training for the sector 10 59% had participated in continuing training and only 7 41% reported learning a great deal from that training Many employees developed skills through incidental learning including learning by solving problems individually or with colleagues learning by regular rotation of tasks and learning under the boss or an experienced worker Contains 23 tables figures MN

Training in the Motor Vehicle Repair and Sales Sector in Belgium European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training, 1994 An international team of researchers studied the following aspects of training in Belgium's motor vehicle repair and sales sector structure and characteristics institutional and social context relationship to Belgium's overall labor market changing structural economic and organizational conditions and training and recruitment and relationship to Belgium's education system Data were obtained from a review of government social and labor employment statistics and from case studies of the four firms Peugeot Talbot Volvo Ford and Mercedes Each case study included a general profile of the company its personnel management and vocational policies and its provisions for continuing ongoing training Belgium's educational system was found to contain at least four different channels by which individuals can prepare for jobs in the sector Most public private collaborative training efforts were focused on at risk groups In total training activities within the sector the initiatives taken by motor vehicle manufacturers played the most important role Training initiatives and policies varied widely by company Collaborations between different manufacturers appeared to represent a very important option for the future and self study was increasing in importance Most manufacturers invested in their own training infrastructures however training was also contracted out Fifteen tables are included MN

Training in the Motor Vehicle Repair and Sales Sector in the Grand Duchy of Luxembourg European Centre for the Development of Vocational Training, 1994 An international team of researchers studied the following aspects of training in Luxembourg's motor vehicle repair and sales sector structure and characteristics institutional and social context relationship to Luxembourg's overall labor market changing structural economic and organizational conditions and training and recruitment and relationship to Luxembourg's education system Social and labor employment statistics were analyzed and case studies of a 20 employee Saab importer dealer repairer and a 132 employee Mercedes Benz importer dealer were conducted The case studies were concluded to confirm the following problems trends in worker training in Luxembourg shortage of skilled workers especially workers born in Luxembourg growing interest in continuing vocational training in response to economic and technological changes and to overcome the shortcomings of initial vocational training and shortages of funding and time and absence of structured forward looking programs to develop human resources Major national initiatives have been proposed to solve the identified problems reforming training leading to advanced training certificates restructuring initial training and establishing a means of sharing training costs through state subsidies fiscal incentives and company investment Fourteen tables are included MN
