Cities And Climate Change Responding To An Urgent Agenda Urban Development:

Cities and Climate Change Daniel Hoornweg, Mila Freire, Marcus J. Lee, Perinaz Bhada-Tata, Belinda Yuen, 2011-06-02
This book provides the latest knowledge and practice in responding to the challenge of climate change in cities. Case studies focus on topics such as New Orleans in the context of a fragile environment, a framework to include poverty in the cities and climate change discussion and measuring the impact of GHG emissions.

Mega-Urban Development and Transformation Processes in Vietnam Frauke Kraas, Javier Revilla Diez, Matthias Garschagen, Le Thu Hoa, 2023
Since the beginning of the Doi Moi reforms, Vietnam's economy and society have been profoundly transformed. While in 1986 less than 13 million of Vietnam's inhabitants lived in areas classified as urban, 20% of the number has risen to more than 30 million inhabitants today. 35% of the total population. This massive urbanisation was made possible by the rapid transformation of the former agricultural state into an industrial and service state and extensive migration processes from rural areas to the fast growing cities and megacities. Fifteen articles analyse the current situation.

Cities and Climate Change Harriet Bulkeley, 2013-05-07
Climate change is one of the most significant global challenges facing the world today. It is also a critical issue for the world's cities. Now home to over half the world's population, urban areas are significant sources of greenhouse gas emissions and are vulnerable to the impacts of climate change. Responding to climate change is a profound challenge. A variety of actors are involved in urban climate governance, with municipal governments, international organisations and funding bodies pointing to cities as key arenas for response. This book provides the first critical introduction to these challenges, giving an overview of the science and policy of climate change at the global level and the emergence of climate change as an urban policy issue. It considers the challenges of governing climate change in the city in the context of the changing nature of urban politics, economics, society and infrastructures. It looks at how responses for mitigation and adaptation have emerged within the city and the implications of climate change for social and environmental justice. Drawing on examples from cities in the north and south and richly illustrated with detailed case studies, this book will enable students to understand the potential and limits of addressing climate change at the urban level and to explore the consequences for our future cities. It will be essential reading for undergraduate students across the disciplines of geography, politics, sociology, urban studies, planning and science and technology studies.

Decarbonising Cities Vanessa Rauland, Peter Newman, 2015-03-27
This book sets out some positive directions to move forward, including government policy and regulatory options, an innovative GRID (Greening Regenerative Improvement Districts) scheme that can assist with funding and management, and the first steps towards an innovative carbon credit scheme for the built environment. Decarbonising cities is a global agenda with huge significance for the future of urban civilisation. Global demonstrations have shown that technology and design issues are largely solved. However, the mainstreaming of low carbon urban development, particularly at the precinct scale, currently lacks sufficient standards for measuring carbon covering operational embodied and transport.

emissions assessment and decision making tools to assist in design options certifying processes for carbon neutrality within the built environment and accreditation processes for enabling carbon credits to be generated from precinct wide urban development Numerous barriers are currently hindering greater adoption of high performance low carbon developments many of which relate to implementation and governance How to enable and manage precinct scale renewables and other low carbon technologies within an urban setting is a particular challenge Financing Africa's Cities Thierry Paulais, 2012-07-05 This volume addresses the issues of financing urban growth of the African continent which has the highest urban growth rate on the planet in the next decades Considerable investment will be needed to sustain this level of growth and to clear up accumulated backlogs At the same time decentralization has resulted in increased responsibilities for local government but in most cases institutional reforms were carried out without the transfer of a sufficient level of resources and local capacities in governance and project management are weak Which mechanisms will finance these extensive needs and how will African local governments meet these needs Specifics on how to finance African cities have not been studied The actual scale of this market has not been fully grasped A systemic approach to this market is difficult because of its diversity country size institutional context characteristics of urban network availability of capital market currency etc and a lack of data Donors assistance methods in the sector are disparate marked by disputes between different schools of thought special purpose vehicles created by donors operate according to a variety of methods and with wide ranging and sparsely disseminated results What is the best way to transform these systems often antiquated in many respects into modern financing systems that facilitate access to domestic markets mobilize local savings and reinforce local government autonomy There is no single answer to this question in regard to such a variety of institutional and economic contexts The main objective of the study is to clarify the debates and to enlighten the choices of African decision makers at local and national level Climate Change, Assets and Food Security in Southern African Cities Bruce Frayne, Caroline Moser, Gina Ziervogel, 2013-03-01 There is overwhelming evidence that the climate is changing It is the poorest countries and people who are the most vulnerable to this threat and who will suffer the most This book shows how increasing urbanization and growing poverty levels mean that it is imperative to ask how climate change might impact on asset accumulation and food security for the urban poor It demonstrates how these three often separate foci can be brought together to frame a holistic urban adaptation approach Furthermore although much has been written about climate change limited evidence exists in southern Africa of how climate change has been integrated in urban planning The authors explore the urban climate change nexus linking asset adaptation climate change science and food security through several case study cities These include Cape Town George and Khara Hais South Africa Lusaka Zambia Maputo Mozambique Mombasa Kenya and Harare Zimbabwe The results shed light on how this nexus might be explored from different perspectives both theoretical and practical in order to plan for a more resilient future Climate Change Assets and Food Security in Southern African Cities comprises ten chapters which focus on southern African cities with each chapter written by highly experienced academics research focused practitioners and professional planners Although the book concentrates on southern African cities the insights which are presented can be used to understand other urban centres in low and middle income countries outside of this region and around the world Climate Change 2014 -
