Empathy in the Treatment of Trauma and PTSD John P. Wilson, Ph.D., Rhiannon Brywnn Thomas, Ph.D., 2004-11-23 Empathy in the Treatment of Trauma and PTSD examines how professionals are psychologically impacted by their work with trauma clients A national research study provides empirical evidence documenting the struggle for professionals to maintain therapeutic equilibrium and empathic attunement with their trauma clients Among the many important findings of this study all participants reported being emotionally and psychologically affected by the work often quite profoundly leading to changes in worldview beliefs about the nature of humankind and the meaning of life John P Wilson and Rhiannon Thomas set out to understand how to heal those who experience empathic strain in the course of their professional specialization The data included in the book allows for the development of conceptual dynamic models of effective management of empathic strain which may cause vicarious traumatization burnout and serious countertransference processes

Ford, 2013-09-27 Chronic childhood trauma such as prolonged abuse or family violence can severely disrupt a person's development basic sense of self and later relationships Adults with this type of history often come to therapy with complex symptoms that go beyond existing criteria for posttraumatic stress disorder PTSD This important book brings together prominent authorities to present the latest thinking on complex traumatic stress disorders and provide practical guidelines for conceptualization and treatment Evidence based assessment procedures are detailed and innovative individual couple family and group therapies are described and illustrated with case vignettes and session transcripts

A Multidimensional Approach to Post-Traumatic Stress Disorder Ghassan El-Baalbaki, Christophe Fortin, 2016-11-02 In line with the theoretical elaboration of countertransference in the trauma clinic this article addresses the therapist's relationship to the strangeness of the trauma as well as his/her interaction with the cultural difference of the other who is in this case the traumatized patient Thirty one therapists were interviewed about their subjective experiences using the methodology of interpretative phenomenological analysis This article shows interesting subtleties in countertransference reactions to trauma narratives and sheds light on processes indicative of trauma transmission Therapists interviewed could express experiencing moments of strangeness and inner disquiet resonance in the defense mechanisms deployed by therapists and by patients at certain moments of the therapy resorting to disregarding cultural interpretations generalizations to make sense of an utterly painful situation and put a protective distance with the patient's culture of origin

Treating Trauma Survivors With PTSD Rachel Yehuda, 2008-08-13 In recent years considerable research as well as clinical guidelines based on study findings has been published on the treatment of posttraumatic stress disorder PTSD A gap remains however between the controlled environments and protocols used in intervention research and the more complex and often imperfect settings and situations that clinicians must navigate in daily practice Moreover clinicians routinely see patients whose comorbid substance abuse self destructive behavior or medical illness would likely exclude them from research studies In short although the extensive literature is certainly helpful in articulating the various treatment modalities available to clinicians the strength of the evidence for the efficacy of the treatments and the recommendations and personal preferences of experts the literature does not address the real life dilemmas that clinicians face in attempting to treat trauma survivors What is needed is a way to bridge the gap between research and practice to translate study findings into everyday clinical realities Treating Trauma Survivors With PTSD answers that need Its authors experienced researchers and clinicians who are at the forefront of conceptual discourse on trauma and PTSD are uniquely qualified to offer guidance on these issues Among the specific topics covered are the following Diagnosis and assessment of and treatment planning for trauma survivors with PTSD including clinical presentations related to trauma exposure and PTSD and the implications of comorbid symptoms and disorders Treatment matching in clinical practice how treatment outcome findings can be used to develop profiles for predicting which patients are most likely to respond to which treatments Medications useful in the treatment of PTSD and the strength of the empirical evidence for their efficacy Trauma in children and the efficacy of various treatments including a discussion of how treatment for children differs from that for adults Assessment and treatment of multiply traumatized patients those with both recent trauma and a history of childhood trauma or abuse Treatment of trauma survivors in the acute aftermath of traumatic events including a review of some of the exciting developments in the field regarding risk factors e g normal vs pathological coping responses that influence which individuals are most likely to develop PTSD after such events These topics have never been more relevant than now in the wake of the attacks that shook our country on September 11 2001 It is the authors hope that by reading this book mental health practitioners will gain more confidence in applying the specialized techniques described in empirical studies to their own practices and clinical realities
