

Closing Remarks for Speech

Definition :

Closing remarks are the concluding part of a speech where the speaker wraps up their presentation.

Example:

Let us take what we've learned today and put it into practice. By doing so, we can all contribute to a brighter, more successful future.

Thank you once again for your time and enthusiasm. Have a wonderful [day/afternoon/evening], and let's go forward with renewed energy and purpose.

Closing Remarks Speech for Graduation

Ladies and Gentlemen,

Distinguished guests, faculty, parents, and most importantly, the graduates.

Thank you all for being here today to celebrate this significant milestone. Today marks the end of one chapter and the exciting beginning of another in the lives of our graduates.

To the graduates: You have worked hard, shown resilience, and achieved a remarkable accomplishment. You have faced challenges, learned lessons, and grown in countless ways. As you step into the next phase of your life, remember to carry with you the values and knowledge you have gained here. Embrace new opportunities, continue to learn, and strive to make a positive impact in whatever you do.

To the faculty and staff: Your dedication and support have been instrumental in guiding these students to this moment. Thank you for your unwavering commitment to their education and personal growth.

As we conclude this ceremony, let us reflect on the journey that brought us here and look forward to the future with optimism and hope. Graduates, take pride in your achievements, stay curious, and never stop striving for excellence. The world is waiting for your contributions, and I have no doubt that you will make it a better place.

Congratulations to the Class of [year]! May your future be bright, your dreams be big, and your successes be numerous. Thank you, and have a wonderful day!

Political Leadership and the European Commission Presidency Henriette Müller,2020 The EU s pluralistic nonhierarchical system of multilevel governance lacks clear structures of both government and opposition According to the EU treaties the presidency of the European Commission is thus not explicitly expected to exercise political leadership However the position cannot effectively be exercised without any demonstration of such leadership due to its many leadership functions Examining this curious mix of strong political demands weak institutional powers and need for political leadership this book systematically analyses the political leadership performance of the presidents of the European Commission throughout the process of European integration The basic argument is that Commission presidents matter not only in the process of European integration but that their impact varies according to how the different incumbents deal with the institutional structure and the situational circumstances and thus their available strategic choices The primary research question is thus What makes political leadership in European governance successful and to what extent and why do Commission presidents differ in their leadership performance In addressing this question this book departs from existing research on EU leadership which has to date often analysed either the EU s institutional structure and its potential for leadership or mainly focused on only the most recent incumbents in case study analyses Focusing on the multiterm European Commission presidents Walter Hallstein Jacques Delors and Jos Manuel Barroso this book conceptualizes their political leadership as a performance and thus systematically analyzes their agenda setting mediative institutional and public outreach performance over the entire course of their presidential terms
