Chemical Carcinogenesis Claudio Nicolini, 2012-11-25 During October 18-30 1981 the second course of the International School of Pure and Applied Biostructure a NATO Advanced Study Institute was held at the Ettore Majorana Center for Scientific Culture in Erice Italy co-sponsored by the International Union Against Cancer the Italian League Against Cancer the Italian Ministry of Public Education the Italian Ministry of Scientific and Technological Research the North Atlantic Treaty Organization the Italian National Research Council the Sicilian Regional Government and two pharmaceutical Companies Zambelletti and Farmitalia The subject of the course was Chemical Carcinogenesis with participants selected world wide from 18 different countries It is now eminently clear that the bulk of human cancers are related to one of several types of environmental exposure Of the environmental hazards chemicals are among the best characterized carcinogens However how chemicals induce cancer is still poorly understood Because of the magnitude of the problem and the obvious need for a much more critical scientific analysis of the process by which cancer is induced carcinogenesis it was highly desirable to expose a greater number of scientists with varying background to some of the latest thinking in chemical carcinogenesis The course had this as its major objective and the resulting book does reflect it Chemical Carcinogenesis

Chyczewski, Jacek Niklinski, Eric Pluygers, 2002 This work is devoted to the study of the endocrine related effects on human health with special reference to carcinogenesis and to the assessment of carcinogenic risk After providing basic information at the general cellular and molecular levels the contents focus on the paradigm of biologically based risk assessment as developed from physiologically based toxicokinetic models The analysis of this material is proposed as the novel parameters for developing biologically based models of carcinogenesis considered to be more relevant to risk assessment than traditional approaches Averting Disaster: Science For Peace In A Perilous Age - The Erice International Seminars On Nuclear War And Planetary Emergencies: From 1981 To 2008 William A Barletta, Henning Wegener, 2009-07-20 This is a book of testimonials from participants to the famous Erice International Seminars on Nuclear War and Planetary Emergencies The Erice International Seminars with their multidisciplinary scientific audiences have addressed since 1981 a long list of planetary problems and emergencies This book describes one of the most exciting intellectual and political ventures of the later part of the 20th century of the decades of the Cold War a period of bristling East West tension with the omnipresent possibility that its management might get out of hand and a war of unimaginable proportion and potential damage eruption The Erice International Seminars held in an idyllic setting of a small location in Western Sicily were the attempt to stem these perilous tides and to put science at the service of political problem solving in a new open and interdisciplinary approach aimed at the highest scientific level Thousands of top level scientists the best in their respective fields among them many Nobel Prize laureates have participated in the Seminars and their interdisciplinary working groups as well as the Permanent Monitoring Panels and have helped to generate a steady and influential flow of scientific insight United in their work in a unique community of knowledge wisdom and shared values these eminent scientists testify today the importance and the impact of the Erice International Seminars during the last 28 years Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), 1993 First multi year cumulation covers six years 1965 70 National Library of Medicine Current Catalog National Library of Medicine (U.S.), Biological Effects and Dosimetry of Nonionizing Radiation Martino Gandolfo, 2013-11-11 During the last 35 years there has been considerable development and increase in the number of devices that emit nonionizing radiant energies These energies such as radiofrequency including microwaves are used in all sectors of our society for military industrial telecommunications medical and consumer applications This increase in sources of nonionizing radiant energies has resulted in growing interest on the part of government regulatory agencies industrial and military physicians research workers clinicians and environmentalists Although there is information on biologic effects and potential hazards to man from exposure to microwave radiofrequency energies considerable confusion and misinformation has permeated not only the public press but also some scientific and technical publications Because of the complexity of the interactions of nonionizing radiation in biological systems an interdisciplinary approach is necessary to assess and elucidate the problems that evolve as this field advances and as the use of these energies expands It is important to maintain a proper perspective and assess realistically the biomedical effects of these radiant energies so that the worker or general public will not be unduly exposed nor will research development and beneficial utilization of these energies be hampered or restricted by an undue concern for effects which may be nonexistent or minimal in comparison to other environmental hazards

Recent Advances in Quantitative Methods in Cancer and Human Health Risk Assessment Lutz Edler, Christos Kitsos, 2005-12-13 Human health risk assessment involves the measuring of risk of exposure to disease with a view to improving disease prevention Mathematical biological statistical and computational methods play a key role in exposure assessment hazard assessment and identification and dose response modelling Recent Advances in Quantitative Methods in Cancer and Human Health Risk Assessment is a comprehensive text that accounts for the wealth of new biological data as well as new biological toxicological and medical approaches adopted in risk assessment It provides an authoritative compendium of state of the art methods proposed and used featuring contributions from eminent authors with varied experience from academia government and industry Provides a comprehensive summary of currently available quantitative methods for risk assessment of both cancer and non cancer problems Describes the applications and the limitations of current mathematical modelling and statistical analysis methods classical and Bayesian Includes an extensive introduction and discussion to each chapter Features detailed studies of risk assessments using biologically based modelling approaches Discusses the varying computational aspects of the methods proposed Provides a global perspective on human health risk assessment by featuring case studies from a wide range of countries Features an extensive bibliography with links to relevant background information within each chapter Recent Advances in Quantitative Methods in Cancer and Human Health Risk Assessment will appeal to researchers and practitioners in public health epidemiology and postgraduate students alike It will also be of interest to professionals working in risk assessment agencies

Targeting of Drugs Gregory Gregoriadis, 2012-12-06 Successful drug use in biology and medicine is often prejudiced by the failure of drugs that are otherwise active in vitro to act as efficiently in vivo This is because in the living animal drugs must as a rule bypass or traverse organs membranes cells and molecules that stand between the site of administration and the site of action In practice however drugs can be toxic to normal tissues have limited or no access to the target and be prematurely excreted or inactivated There is now growing optimism that such problems may be resolved by the use of carrier systems that will not only protect the non target environment from the drugs they carry but also deliver them to where they are needed or facilitate their release there Carrier systems presently under investigation include antibodies glycoproteins cells reconstituted viruses and liposomes Recent advances in the chemistry of cell receptor and receptor recognising molecules Immunology and natural and artificial membranes have revealed a multitude of ways in which such carrier systems can be modified or improved upon

Advances in Vertebrate Neuroethology Jorg-Peter Ewert, 2012-12-06 This volume presents the proceedings of the NATO Advanced Study Institute on Advances in Vertebrate Neuroethology held at the University of Kassel Federal Republic of Germany in August 1981 During the last decade much progress has been made in understanding the neurophysiological bases of behavior in both vertebrates and invertebrates The reason for this is that a number of new physiological anatomical and histochemical techniques have recently been developed for brain research which can now be combined with ethological methods for the analysis of animal behavior to form a new field of research known as Neuroethology The term Neuroethology was originally introduced by S L Brown and R W Hunsperger 1963 in connection with studies on the activation of agonistic behaviors by electrical brain stimulation in cats Neuroethology was more closely defined by G Hoyle 1970 in the context of a review on cellular mechanisms underlying behavior of invertebrates Since the 6th annual meeting of the Society for Neuroscience held in Toronto in 1976 Neuroethology has become established as a session topic
