Ethics and Professional Persuasion Ralph D. Barney, 2003-07-30 Examining the applied media ethics question of professional persuasion this special double issue resulted from a colloquium and conference on allowable ethical limits of deception in professional persuasion Participants were invited to reason their way toward a threshold that would define acceptable deception for a professional persuader in pursuit of favorable market and public opinion conditions for a client As a whole this issue covers a broad range of views and expressions of opinion that often come close to defining the threshold between morally acceptable and morally outrageous persuasion Joining the Dialogue: Practices for Ethical Research

African Context Lucas M. Oosthuizen, 2002 This text explores the dynamic and potentially explosive field of media ethics from a South African perspective Grounded in ethical theory the public philosophies of communication and media performance norms this text provides guidelines for individual ethical decision making to media practitioners and media groups The author's analysis of the South African normative context under the previous and present political dispensations will be of interest to media policy formulators and students alike Current contentious issues such as racism in the media the plans for media development in this country the reporting of violence and crime the right to privacy and the media and advertising all come under intense scrutiny Addenda include rules of procedure and the code of conduct of the Press Ombudsman of South Africa the constitution code and procedures of the Broadcasting Complaints Commission of South Africa and the code of conduct of the Public Relations Institute of Southern Africa Media Education Assessment

Handbook William G. Christ, 2020-07-24 Assessing media education is a formidable task because both assessment and media education are complex and controversial concepts Assessment which can take place at the individual student class sequence program department or unit and university levels is questioned in terms of reliability validity relevance and cost Media education which has been challenged at a number of schools finds faculty and administrators in the midst of soul searching about how to clearly articulate its missions and purposes to a broader audience Departments are under increasing national state and institutional pressure to get assessment procedures carried out quickly but there is an obvious danger in rushing to implement assessment strategies before establishing what is essential in media education In communication education in general the what of assessment is often discussed in terms of skills attitudes affect values and knowledge People assess students to determine what they know think feel value and can do Here it is suggested that one of the places to start defining what students should learn from their media education is by identifying outcomes Outcomes can be assessed in a variety of ways but first they need to be developed and clearly articulated
