

Remember...

To achieve a fair shot, you as an animal that is running or moving should stay true to the line of sight. You should not be moving or running, and you should not be moving.

The most effective location for a turkey is in the forest and woods. The ground and water are the best locations for turkeys, and the forest is the best.

Vital Shots

Every hunter wants to bring home the game he or she is seeking, and sometimes this can be done by following a natural amount of hunting. To achieve this, you must be sure that you understand the anatomy of the game, your shot, and how to place a shot for a clean kill.

Where To Shoot

- The most effective shot is delivered to an animal's vital organs—heart and lungs. In large game animals, these organs lie in the chest cavity behind the front shoulder. A long shot is the most effective shot for big game.
- The aim of the vital organs also includes major blood vessels and arteries. A shot in this area causes considerable bleeding. If the animal drops the immediately will stop to die, it will have a blood trail that's easy to track.
- Aside from being a good technique, the key to a clean kill is patience. Hunters should wait until the vital organs only. If you do not have a clear shot to the vital organs, wait until the animal presents the best possible shot.

Choosing the Proper Shot Angle

The shot angle is the angle at which the animal is standing in relation to the hunter. Knowing which angles offer the most effective—and least effective—shots is an essential part of being a responsible hunter.

Broadside

The broadside shot angle is the preferred shot angle for both hunters and both hunters for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear.

- Elk: The broadside position offers several excellent shots for a hunter. The first target is the shoulder and chest area. A bullet of the correct weight that is fired from a distance allows for the game will break the shoulder bone and cause the lungs to burst.
- Bear: The broadside angle offers the best shot for the largest big game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear. The most big game, the shooting spot is straight up from the back side of the front leg, one-third of the way up from the bottom of the chest. The arrow will penetrate the rib but not the shoulder bone, and the arrow will be forward, and not behind the shoulder.
- Quarrying Away: The quarrying away shot angle is when your target is facing away from you but at an angle. The animal is usually looking away from you.
 - Elk: For hunters, the quarrying away position offers several moving spots on all big game. The area just behind the shoulder is the best moving spot for those practitioners of the vital organs. From on facing the chest area above the opposite front leg.

The preferred shot for large game animals, such as elk, deer, and bear is broadside.

Firing Positions

There are four standard rifle firing positions: prone, standing, sitting, and kneeling.

Prone

The prone position is the most stable of the four positions. Because it's the easiest to hold, it's the best position for maximizing the effectiveness of long-range, heavy-caliber, sniper rifles and bolt-action rifles.

Standing

With neither arm supported, this is the most difficult position for firing an accurate shot. Rather than trying to hold the barrel steady, which is impossible, try to keep movement of the barrel to a minimum as you aim at your target. A steady, natural motion will produce the best shot.

Kneeling

With only one arm braced, the kneeling position is less steady than the prone and sitting positions.

Sitting

Both arms are supported by your legs. More so the prone position, this is the most stable position.

Safety Tip

Shooting a firearm can cause explosion and permanent injury and even death.

- When shooting any firearm, always wear properly fitting eye protection for target practice, use an earplug or earmuff or both, with a high Noise Reduction Rating (NRR).

When hunting, use the same eye and ear protection that you would use when shooting a target. Always use proper technique when shooting a target. Always use proper technique when shooting a target.

- Always wear suitable eye protection, such as shooting glasses, and high-impact lenses when shooting to protect your vision.
