Cushing Civil War Seal Military Pro:

Cushing Robert John Schneller, 2004 Analyzes the qualities of military leadership and personality that made Cushing successful

Home Squadron James C Rentfrow, 2014-04-15 This study examines the transformation of the United States Navy as a fighting organization that took place on the North Atlantic Station between 1874 and 1897 At the beginning of this period the warships assigned to this station were collectively administered by a rear admiral but were operationally deployed as individual units each of whose actions were directed by their captains By 1897 the North Atlantic or Home Squadron as it was known was a group of warships constituting a protean battle fleet that is an organized body moving and fighting in close order which meant that the actions of the captains were directed by a commanding admiral The process of the development of an American battle fleet resulted in the construction of a new organizational identity for the North Atlantic Squadron This process was as critical as the eventual outcome It was not linear but one in which progress in critical areas was modulated by conflicting demands that caused distraction From 1874 1888 exercises in fleet tactics under steam were carried out sporadically utilizing existing wooden cruising vessels From 1889 1894 the last wooden cruisers were decommissioned and the Squadron consisted entirely of new steel warships Ad hoc concentrations of vessels for purposes besides exercise and training retarded the continued development of doctrine and tactics necessary for a multi ship fighting capability during this time However much work was done to develop a concept of multi ship operations From 1895 1897 the identity of the North Atlantic Squadron as a combat unit solidified Tactical exercises were held that had specific offensive and defensive wartime applications These exercises were necessary to develop a combat capability The results of this study demonstrate that the United States government had an interest in developing an offensive naval combat capability as early as the 1870 s Based on the record of the North Atlantic Squadron it is argued that imperial aspirations in the sense of possessing a capability to restrict the actions of other great powers in the Caribbean region existed prior to the War of 1898 However the process of change often resulted in the appearance of capability without the rigorous exercise necessary to possess it
