Vocabulary
Capitalism	An economic system in which ordinary people and businesses control the flow of money. The United States is based on the idea of capitalism. The main advantage of this system is that it is based on competition. Businesses and individuals must compete to earn money, keeping them to do their best or suffer the consequences.
Draft	The draft is when you are selected by your government to serve in the military during a time of war, even if you don't want to. All men over the age of 18 are required to register for the draft. The draft was used during both world wars, but really drew attention during the Vietnam War, because so many people disagreed with the war and protested the draft.
Communism	An economic system in which the government controls the flow of money. The system sounds good in theory, because it is presented as making things fair for everybody. Problems usually arise though, because the government controls everything, which leads to terrible disasters like Joseph Stalin (Soviet Union) or Mao Zedong (China) who murdered millions of their own people. The other problem is that people aren't motivated to work hard, because the system isn't based on competition.
Arms Race	During the Cold War both the United States and the Soviet Union were worried of the other country and were afraid the other was going to try to take over the world using their nuclear weapons. As a result both countries began to make as many nuclear weapons as possible to defend themselves in case of war. "Arms" refers to weapons and the "Race" refers to the competition to have the most. Many new technologies were created as a result of the arms race.
Nuclear War	The United States first successfully used an atomic or nuclear bomb at the end of WWII in 1945. Throughout the cold war people all over the world were afraid the U.S. and Soviet Union would try to use them on each other. The tremendous power of the bombs would cause all kinds of problems if nuclear war did occur. Obviously there would be millions of casualties and radiation poisoning would harm millions more. In addition, scientists feared that if many nuclear bombs were set off, the world would experience a nuclear winter, which means that the ash from the bombs would stay in the atmosphere for months or even years and decrease the amount of sun the earth receives causing the earth to go into an extended winter.
Veteran	A veteran is someone who has served in the military.
