Competition for Public Transport Services Arne Beck, 2012-03-23 This book evaluates the successes failures and factors that influence the competition for public bus transport services Using Germany as a case study the author explains the dichotomous system of a market with licenses for commercial services where operators are granted exclusivity and licenses for non commercial services where supplementary direct subsidies are tendered out by public transport authorities The empirical analysis is based on primary data usually not publicly available and supplemented by numerous expert interviews The book aims to provide a basic understanding of the players and their options offer insights into the German model and make policy recommendations for those whose goal is to increase competition Competition for Public Transport Services, 2012-03-28 Modelling Public Transport Passenger Flows in the Era of Intelligent Transport Systems Guido Gentile, Klaus Nökel, 2016-02-03 This book shows how transit assignment models can be used to describe and predict the patterns of network patronage in public transport systems It provides a fundamental technical tool that can be employed in the process of designing implementing and evaluating measures and or policies to improve the current state of transport systems within given financial technical and social constraints The book offers a unique methodological contribution to the field of transit assignment because moving beyond traditional models it describes more evolved variants that can reproduce intermodal networks with high and low frequency services realistic behavioural hypotheses underpinning route choice time dependency in frequency based models and assumptions about the knowledge that users have of network conditions that are consistent with the present and future level of information that intelligent transport systems ITS can provide The book also considers the practical perspective of practitioners and public transport operators who need to model and manage transit systems for example the role of ITS is explained with regard to their potential in data collection for modelling purposes and validation techniques as well as with regard to the additional data on network patronage and passengers preferences that influences the network management and control strategies implemented In addition it explains how the different aspects of network operations can be incorporated in traditional models and identifies the advantages and disadvantages of doing so Lastly the book provides practical information on state of the art implementations of the different models and the commercial packages that are currently available for transit modelling Showcasing original work done under the aegis of the COST Action TU1004 TransITS the book provides a broad readership ranging from Master and PhD students to researchers and from policy makers to practitioners with a comprehensive tool for understanding transit assignment models Emergency Commuter Relief Act United States. Congress. Senate. Committee on Banking, Housing, and Urban Affairs, 1973 Urban Public Transport Today Dr Barry John Simpson, B. Simpson, 2003-09-02 It is widely recognised that there are many people for whom public transport is essential particularly amongst the elderly children and teenagers Less obvious is the dependence of our cities for their existence on high capacity public transport Although there is still a prevalent view that local public transport is only for those who do not have a car we are slowly beginning to realise that we need to find ways of restricting use of the private car more severely and that will involve some transfer to public transport There is a widening gap between what we expect of public transport and what can be delivered Our expectations for travel are increasing both in quantity and in the standards of speed reliability and comfort Out of town shopping leisure parks and business parks all involve more travel than did their predecessors Cars are becoming more like mobile sitting rooms with all the home comforts such as CD player and telephone To give all this up for a bus or train is asking a lot Urban Public Transport Today gives an honest appraisal of the pros and cons of new public transport technologies It shows how public transport can be made a less unacceptable alternative to the private car than it is now Public transport needs to be coordinated and planned together with land uses under the Town and Country Planning legislation too often public transport solutions overlook the significance of town planning policies generating demand for travel The author draws on a thorough study of many continental European countries and includes the latest Euro legislation and recent case histories to give a comprehensive coverage of everything from policy problems including land use decisions to practical considerations including road building Urban Public Transport Today will be invaluable for all those involved in the land use local transport conundrum including planning officers policy makers and transport consultants as well as students in transport studies town planning and geography Barry Simpson acts as an advisor to a number of public authorities and private firms in the field of public transport including the Department of Transport He has served for 15 years as an examiner to the Royal Town Planning Institute and teaches transport studies at Aston University

Ticketing and Concessionary Travel on Public Transport Great Britain. Parliament. House of Commons. Transport Committee, 2008 Ticketing and concessionary travel on public transport is the 5th report from the Transport Committee in 2007 08 session HCP 84 ISBN 9780215514493 It examines the the aim of producing an integrated ticketing system across England with the introduction of smartcard concessionary travel passes The report inquires into the extent to which integrated ticketing on public transport has been achieved for all users the issues regarding smartcards arrangements for revenue protection stopping fare evasion which will be affected by new forms of ticket the impact of concessionary travel in England which is costing 1 billion per annum The Committee has set out a number of recommendations including the Committee believes that the Government in terms of promoting integrated bus ticketing has achieved too little of practical value it recommends that Traffic Commissioners be given powers to arbitrate where bus companies and local transport authorities disagree that coach travel should be given greater consideration in future statements of public transport policy it is imperative that the full range of tickets including multi modal options be available at all main outlets so that the Government's aim of fare simplification can be better achieved see The Future of Rail Cm 6233 ISBN 9780101623322 that the Government needs to ensure suitable guidelines on differential pricing is included in decisions on rail fares and rail franchises with particular reference to smartcards that the Government needs to articulate a clearer strategy for the development of integrated ticketing in general and smartcards in particular that the Government should move towards a unified system of public transport revenue protection that the Department of Transport should commission an evaluation of the benefits of the national scheme for free local bus travel and that national concessionary travel is properly funded For a related title see How Fair are the Fairs HCP 700 I session 2005 06 ISBN 9780215028853
