EBOOK: Cancer In Young Adults Anne Grinyer, 2002-10-16 The original inspiration for this book was George who died from osteosarcoma at the age of 23 During his illness his parents tried without success to access information on the life stage issues that make life threatening illness during young adulthood particularly difficult to manage They could find no literature relating specifically to this problem and struggled throughout George's 4 years of living with cancer to cope with the additional problems faced by families in this situation After his death they set up a research project to help other families facing these issues This book is the outcome of that research It is heavily based on the use of narrative material written by parents whose young adult children have been diagnosed with cancer The book addresses issues such as sexuality and fertility independence the need for normality the effect on siblings the ownership of medical information financial issues the impact on the parents partnership and the emotional consequences of the illness It is designed to be of practical assistance both to parents and to

The night before the festival begins, a group of employees at the local market learn that they have won 160 million in the lottery. One of their co-workers, Duncan, decided at the last minute, on the advice of a pair of crooks masquerading as financial advisers, not to play. Then he goes missing. A second winning lottery ticket was purchased in the next town, but the winner hasn't come forward. Could Duncan have secretly bought it? Alvirah Meehan, the amateur sleuth and private investigator, and Regan Reilly have arrived in Branscombe for the festival. They are just the people to find out what is amiss. As they dig beneath the surface, they find that life in Branscombe is not as tranquil as it appears. So much for an old-fashioned weekend in the country.
