Crowdsourcing our Cultural Heritage Mia Ridge, 2016-04-22 Crowdsourcing or asking the general public to help contribute to shared goals is increasingly popular in memory institutions as a tool for digitising or computing vast amounts of data This book brings together for the first time the collected wisdom of international leaders in the theory and practice of crowdsourcing in cultural heritage It features eight accessible case studies of groundbreaking projects from leading cultural heritage and academic institutions and four thought provoking essays that reflect on the wider implications of this engagement for participants and on the institutions themselves Crowdsourcing in cultural heritage is more than a framework for creating content as a form of mutually beneficial engagement with the collections and research of museums libraries archives and academia it benefits both audiences and institutions However successful crowdsourcing projects reflect a commitment to developing effective interface and technical designs This book will help practitioners who wish to create their own crowdsourcing projects understand how other institutions devised the right combination of source material and the tasks for their crowd The authors provide theoretically informed actionable insights on crowdsourcing in cultural heritage outlining the context in which their projects were created the challenges and opportunities that informed decisions during implementation and reflecting on the results This book will be essential reading for information and cultural management professionals students and researchers in universities corporate public or academic libraries museums and archives

Participatory Practices in Art and Cultural Heritage Christoph Rausch, Ruth Benschop, Emilie Sitzia, Vivian van Saaze, 2022-08-24 This edited volume analyzes participatory practices in art and cultural heritage in order to determine what can be learned through and from collaboration across disciplinary borders Following recent developments in museology museum policies and practices have tended to prioritize community engagement over a traditional focus on collecting and preserving museal objects At many museal institutions a shift from a focus on objects to a focus on audiences has taken place Artistic practices in the visual arts music and theater are also increasingly taking on participatory forms The world of cultural heritage has seen an upsurge in participatory governance models favoring the expertise of local communities over that of trained professionals While museal institutions artists and policy makers consider participation as a tool for implementing diversity policy a solution to social disjunction and a form of cultural activism such participation has also sparked a debate on definitions and on issues concerning the distribution of authority power expertise agency and representation While new forms of audience and community engagement and corresponding models for co creation are flourishing fundamental but paralyzing critique abounds and the formulation of ethical frameworks and practical guidelines not to mention theoretical reflection and critical assessment of practices are lagging This book offers a space for critically reflecting on participatory practices with the aim of asking and answering the question How can we learn to better participate To do so it focuses on the emergence of new norms and forms of collaboration as participation and on actual lessons learned from participatory practices If collaboration is the interdependent formulation of problems and entails the common definition of a shared problem space how can we best learn to collaborate across disciplinary borders and what exactly can be learned from such
