Andrew Dainty,Martin Loosemore,2013-05-07 The construction sector is one of the most complex and problematic arenas within which to manage people As a result the applicability of much mainstream human resource management HRM theory to this industry is limited Indeed the operational realities faced by construction organizations mean that all too often the needs of employees are subjugated by performance concerns This has potentially dire consequences for those who work in the industry for the firms that employ them and ultimately for the prosperity and productivity of the industry as a whole In this new edition of their leading text Andrew Dainty and Martin Loosemore have assembled a collection of perspectives which critically examine key aspects of the HRM function in the context of contemporary construction organizations Rather than simply update the previous edition the aim of this second edition is to provide a more critical commentary on the ways in which the industry addresses the HRM function and how this affects those who work within the industry To this end the editors have gathered contributions from many of the leading thinkers within construction HRM to critique the perspectives presented in the first edition Each contributor either tackles specific aspects of the HRM function or provides a critical commentary on industry practice The authors explain using real life case studies the ways in which construction firms respond to the myriad pressures that they face through their HRM practices Together the contributions encourage the reader to rethink the HRM function and its role in defining the employment relationship This provides essential reading for students of construction and project management and reflective practitioners who are interested in theoretically informed insights into industry practice and its implications Advances in Informatics and Computing in Civil and Construction Engineering

Ivan Mutis,Timo Hartmann,2018-10-08 This proceedings volume chronicles the papers presented at the 35th CIB W78 2018 Conference IT in Design Construction and Management held in Chicago IL USA in October 2018 The theme of the conference focused on fostering encouraging and promoting research and development in the application of integrated information technology IT throughout the life cycle of the design construction and occupancy of buildings and related facilities The CIB International Council for Research and Innovation in Building Construction was established in 1953 as an association whose objectives were to stimulate and facilitate international cooperation and information exchange between governmental research institutes in the building and construction sector with an emphasis on those institutes engaged in technical fields of research The conference brought together more than 200 scholars from 40 countries who presented the innovative concepts and methods featured in this collection of papers
