1. The Commission on the Status of Women, established in 1946, was the first international body to deal with the status of women. It was created by the Economic and Social Council of the United Nations. The Commission has since held numerous sessions and has produced a large body of work, including the Declaration on the Elimination of Discrimination against Women and the Convention on the Elimination of All Forms of Discrimination against Women (CEDAW).

In the past, managers have been able to rely on their own intuition and experience to make decisions. But in today's complex, fast-changing business environment, managers need to use a more systematic approach to decision-making. This is where decision trees come in. A decision tree is a tool that helps managers visualize the different options available to them, the potential outcomes of each option, and the likelihood of each outcome. By using a decision tree, managers can make more informed decisions and increase their chances of success.
