Critical Conversations Tom Gilson, 2016 Christian parents need to be prepared to answer the myriad challenges teens might hear in today s increasingly pro homosexual culture Why shouldn t gays get married Who says gay sex is wrong Does the Bible actually say there s anything wrong with homosexuality Don t you care that kids are being bullied just for being themselves To start the discussion Gilson provides a brief history of the issues beginning with the sexual revolution of the 1960s He explains how and why cultural attitudes have reversed on this subject in such a short timespan leaving Christians scrambling for answers This is perhaps the most complicated and contentious issue Christians face in today s culture Most churches are poorly equipped to handle it parents are even less prepared The good news is that parents need not have pat answers ready before they dive into conversations with their teens and preteens on this difficult topic Learning together parents struggling through these issues alongside their kids and leading them to biblical answers has relational benefits Answers are important though so manageable nontechnical answers to common questions surrounding this issue are provided as well as a guide to further resources

Critical Conversations Volume 2: Moving From Monologue to Dialogue. With the field of nursing in the midst of an unprecedented transformation, nurse educators seek new approaches to classroom teaching and learning that prepare students to confront the complexities of practice and confidently solve problems in clinical settings. Building on the foundation of Critical Conversations: The NLN Guide for Teaching Thinking, this second volume in the NLN's Critical Conversations series delivers specific examples and expert direction grounded in knowledge from learning science and models of experiential, situated, and constructivist learning that nurse educators can use to engage students in active thinking as they work together to determine the best approaches to clinical situations. Structured around the three Cs of context, content, and course, this approachable text enhances the teacher-learner relationship and emphasizes clinically focused authentic dialogue to help nurse educators provide the realistic problem-solving experiences essential for preparing tomorrow's nurses for practice. The value of this second volume in the NLN's Critical Conversations series is in the specific guidance it offers to nurse educators. Based on evidence from learning science, constructivist, and experiential learning theories and the science and philosophy of situated cognition, the authors use examples and offer specific instructions to assist nurse educators in all settings to develop the skills they need to transform their teaching and maximize learning.
