The New American High School Ted Sizer, 2013-05-22 The late Theodore Sizer's vision for a truly democratic public high school system Our current high schools are ill designed and inefficient We have inherited a program of studies that in its overall structure has not changed in over a century The question is What's next Theodore Sizer the founder of The Coalition of Essential Schools was a passionate advocate for the American school system In this his last book he offers a vision of what a future secondary education might look like In a book that tells the story of his own odyssey Sizer gives shape to a much needed agenda for improving our high schools Includes a vision for the future of our High Schools from one of America's greatest leaders of educational reform Written by Theodore Sizer founder of The Coalition of Essential Schools and author of landmark book Horace's Compromise This final book from the late Theodore Sizer reveals the man and his vision for our secondary education system

Critical Small Schools Maria Hantzopoulos, Alia R. Tyner-Mullings, 2012-02-01 Critical Small Schools Beyond Privatization in New York City Urban Educational Reform features the most current empirical research about the successes and challenges of the small schools movement and the implications of such for urban public educational policy Situated in a climate of hierarchical reform many of the principles of the original small schools movement which are rooted in community participation innovative pedagogies and assessment and equity and social justice have become obscured by an educational agenda that emphasizes top down mandates and standards based reform With the increased popularity and the rapid proliferation of small schools the emphasis on size only has resulted in a bifurcation of the small schools movement on one end are the small schools which have embraced the democratic participatory and self governing nature of the original movement while on the other end are schools that have simply reduced their size without rethinking school structures and practices This book distinguishes the small schools featured and researched in this volume from schools that are simply small and labels them critical small schools By documenting the practices that take place in various critical small schools in New York City we show how these schools have narrowed the achievement gap and increased graduation and college acceptance rates Although smallness is an essential feature in the design of these schools it is certainly not the only one and this volume illuminates the other elements that contribute to these schools successes and shortcomings Critical Small Schools also challenges the recent emphasis on charter schools as a panacea for urban educational reform By featuring research about the inner workings of public schools this volume challenges this new direction that steers successful school development away from public education Moreover as every site is fraught with some tension Critical Small Schools not only offers glimpses into intellectually vibrant and democratic learning communities but also acknowledges that these concepts are not static and necessitate continual reflection and renewal At this pivotal moment in educational reform this volume provides keen insight into the challenges and possibilities of the small schools movement and is indispensable for anyone interested in comprehensive public school reform

Secondary Education at the Crossroads Phillip Hughes, 2006-09-23 Education is a universal priority Currently it is at a crossroad In every society it is valued as a major road to produce more productive more harmonious and healthier citizens Yet in every setting there is deep dissatisfaction with the overall performance of education and there are major moves towards reform sometimes superficial but more often fundamental These reform processes have had only moderate and very uneven success Too often they are episodic reflecting a short term approach which is frequently changed for the latest enthusiasm or the most recent administration In Asia and the Pacific countries many systems are in the process of construction or reconstruction Can we learn from the experiences of others Given the multiplicity of efforts at reform and the variety of situations for reform there may well be lessons we can learn from each other s efforts and each others failures and successes This book features contributions from experienced researchers who have worked in many different settings and bring their own insights to attack this universal problem

Keeping School Deborah Meier, Nancy Faust Sizer, Theodore R. Sizer, 2004 Education reformers Deborah Meier Theodore Sizer and Nancy Sizer have published books that are acknowledged classics of education writing books that have literally helped shape a movement centered on small schools community and alternative visions of teaching and learning But as school principals all three have also done another kind of writing as well Every week as principles they wrote short essays in their schools newsletters to families Sharp and accessible but intellectually ambitious these little essays talk about everything from homework to discipline from academic expectations to reading for pleasure Keeping School collects the best of these gems from the two schools the authors have most recently run an urban public elementary school in Boston and an exurban charter secondary school thirty miles west in Devens Massachusetts There could be no better portrait of the kind of small school that Meier and the Sizers advocate and the values behind them than these elegant thoughtful intimate letters They are organized around the themes of Authority Community Learning and Standards and the writers who have been friends and colleagues for years frame them with new essays on those larger topics Reflecting decades of practical wisdom this collection is a portrait of a different way of keeping school and an essential companion to books like Ted Sizer s Horace s Compromise Ted and Nancy Sizer's The Students Are Watching and Meier's The Power of Their Ideas Designing and Teaching
