Deforesting The Earth From Prehistory To Global Crisis An Abridgment:

Deforesting the Earth Michael Williams, 2003 Clearing in the deep past Reaching out Europe and the wider world The global forest

Deforesting the Earth Michael Williams, 2010-05-15 Anyone who doubts the power of history to inform the present should read this closely argued and sweeping survey This is rich timely and sobering historical fare written in a measured non sensationalist style by a master of his craft One only hopes almost certainly vainly that today's policymakers take its lessons to heart Brian Fagan Los Angeles Times Published in 2002 Deforesting the Earth was a landmark study of the history and geography of deforestation Now available as an abridgment this edition retains the breadth of the original while rendering its arguments accessible to a general readership Deforestation the thinning changing and wholesale clearing of forests for fuel shelter and agriculture is among the most important ways humans have transformed the environment Surveying ten thousand years to trace human induced deforestation's effect on economies societies and landscapes around the world Deforesting the Earth is the preeminent history of this process and its consequences Beginning with the return of the forests after the ice age to Europe North America and the tropics Michael Williams traces the impact of human set fires for gathering and hunting land clearing for agriculture and other activities from the Paleolithic age through the classical world and the medieval period He then focuses on forest clearing both within Europe and by European imperialists and industrialists abroad from the 1500s to the early 1900s in such places as the New World India and Latin America and considers indigenous clearing in India China and Japan Finally he covers the current alarming escalation of deforestation with our ever increasing human population placing a potentially unsupportable burden on the world's forests

Roots of Empire John T. Wing, 2015-01-27 Roots of Empire is the first monograph to connect forest management and state building in the early modern Spanish global monarchy The Spanish crown's control over valuable sources of shipbuilding timber in Spain Latin America and the Philippines was critical for developing and sustaining its maritime empire This book examines Spain's forest management policies from the sixteenth century through the middle of the eighteenth century connecting the global imperial level with local lived experiences in forest communities impacted by this manifestation of expanded state power As home to the early modern world's most extensive forestry bureaucracy Spain met serious political technological and financial limitations while still managing to address most of its timber needs without upending the social balance

RiverTime Mary A. Hood, 2008-03-20 In this engaging travelogue of our world's rivers great and small poet and biologist Mary A Hood reflects on rivers as creators of place Recounting her journeys along portions of the Mississippi the Danube the Amazon the Yangtze the Ganges the Nile and a dozen small U S rivers Hood weaves together natural history current environmental and conservation issues encounters with endangered plants and animals and tells some interesting tales along the way Like a river the book begins small with essays that are narrowly focused on themes of environment and place such as the need to write our world Three Rivers how fires and corporations control the West the Flathead the effect of wind farms on a small town in western New York the Conhocton the giant redwoods and how they were preserved the Klamath and the search for moose in the great north woods the Penobscot The second section expands the themes of environment and place and looks at great world rivers their long histories their biological diversity the effects of human use and tourism and the paradox of human reverence and destruction From endangered species to invasive species from corporate control of national parks to wind farms from urban sprawl to efforts at conservation and restoration RiverTime offers insights into our relationship to the environment in the twenty first century

Natural Resources Grabbing: An International Law Perspective Francesca Romanin Jacur, Angelica Bonfanti, Francesco Seatzu, 2015-10-14 The growing demand for natural resources has triggered a race to their exploitation and possession especially in developing countries Most desired are water land forests raw materials oil gas mineral and precious stones fisheries and genetic resources Emerging economies Western states multinational corporations and international financial institutions have become the biggest buyers in a race that on one hand strengthens economies and creates investment opportunities and on the other threatens local communities and environmental protection Natural Resources Grabbing An International Law Perspective aims at filling a gap in the legal literature by addressing the adverse effects that large scale investments in natural resources may pose to fundamental human rights and the protection of the environment

Empire and Environmental Anxiety J. Beattie, 2011-05-25 A new interpretation of imperialism and environmental change and the anxieties imperialism generated through environmental transformation and interaction with unknown landscapes Tying together South Asia and Australasia this book demonstrates how environmental anxieties led to increasing state resource management conservation and urban reform

Fir and Empire Ian M. Miller, 2020-06-30 A CHOICE OUTSTANDING ACADEMIC TITLE Restores China's place in forest history The disappearance of China's naturally occurring forests is one of the most significant environmental shifts in the country's history one often blamed on imperial demand for lumber China's early modern forest history is typically viewed as a centuries long process of environmental decline culminating in a nineteenth century social and ecological crisis Pushing back against this narrative of deforestation Ian Miller charts the rise of timber plantations between about 1000 and 1700 when natural forests were replaced with anthropogenic ones Miller demonstrates that this form of forest management generally rested on private ownership under relatively distant state oversight and taxation He further draws on in depth case studies of shipbuilding and imperial logging to argue that this novel landscape was not created through simple extractive pressures but by attempts to incorporate institutional and ecological complexity into a unified imperial state Miller uses the emergence of anthropogenic forests in south China to rethink both temporal and spatial frameworks for Chinese history and the nature of Chinese empire Because dominant European forestry models do not neatly overlap with the non Western world China's history is often left out of global conversations about them Miller's work rectifies this omission and suggests that in some ways China's forest system may have worked better than the more familiar European institutions The open access publication of this book was made possible by a grant from the James P Geiss and Margaret Y Hsu Foundation
