The Perfect Salesforce Derek Gatehouse,2007 How any company can build an incredibly effective salesforce by learning from the best in the world Despite billions spent every year on personality profiling sales training motivational experts coaches and incentives theres never been a proven formula for building a salesforce of top performers Finding such a holy grail of sales has been Derek Gatehouse's obsession for decades. To identify what makes a top producing salesperson the kind who sells four times more than everyone else and why some sales teams have a high percentage of top producers, he interviewed more than two thousand executives in many different industries. His findings challenge the conventional wisdom about hiring, training, managing, and rewarding a sales team. Gatehouse has tested virtually every personality assessment tool, sales process, training methodology, and management system available only to conclude that the vast majority of those systems don't raise performance in a lasting way. Instead, the world's greatest sales teams share six simple but critical practices. For instance, they all hire for talent, not skill, or even experience. Blend positive and negative motivators. Measure results instead of micromanaging process. The book features dozens of anecdotes and clear lessons for any company seeking dramatic improvement in its sales performance.

TALK in Multilingual Classrooms Erwin Maria Gierlinger, Marion Döll, Gudrun Isolde Keplinger, 2023. This volume presents a variety of concepts, practices, and experiences in the field of content learning through the additional language(s) of learners in a migration society. It contains reflections on the complex interplay between the unifying characteristics of monolingual and multilingual programmes and their often diverging local and contextual interpretations and implementations. In addition, it describes how migration pedagogy has become a catalyst for discussing the ideological and power aspects of language learning and how a hegemony-critical attitude needs to become an integral part of classroom language learning and communicating. In this context, the deliberate development of Teachers' Awareness of Language Knowledge (TALK) through a variety of supportive measures is considered to be of central pedagogical importance. Principles and practical applications of TALK for the classroom are discussed and evaluated.

Satellite Ministries Febe Armanios, 2025. In 1981, a satellite television station called Star of Hope began broadcasting from Israeli-occupied South Lebanon. Backed by American missionaries, Israeli politicians, and Lebanese Catholic leaders, the channel aired Western entertainment and Christian content using a repurposed ABC Monday Night Football truck situated on the Israel-Lebanon border. Later renamed Middle East Television (METV), its programming included American soap operas, sports, and evangelical content alongside innovative Arabic Christian televangelism. It was a station of enormous consequence. METV spurred the growth of competing Christian broadcasters and reshaped the Middle East's media and religious landscape over the next four decades. Yet it was of course controversial; its foreign imperialist and proselytizing approach to media was a source of curiosity and consternation in the region and occasionally around the world. Through extensive fieldwork and archival research, Febe Armanios explores how Western evangelicals and indigenous Christians harnessed terrestrial and satellite technologies to promote Christian television in the Middle East. The fifteen channels analyzed in this study fall into three main categories: Western-backed conservative outlets with a charismatic and apocalyptic outlook; middle ground channels that sought to balance their international sponsors' expectations with local interests and grassroots initiatives rooted in ancient church traditions. The histories and programming strategies of primarily Arabic but also Turkish and Persian Christian channels reveal how media producers forged unexpected political alliances, pursued sectarian objectives, and navigated various transnational influences. Satellite Ministries explores how modern expressions of faith, technology, and political power intersected and clashed across the Global South and beyond. In this groundbreaking work, Armanios presents a crucial examination of this unique and little-known media landscape.

TURKISH POLICY QUARTERLY - VOL. 20 - NO. 3 - FALL 2021 Janet Steele, Jeremy Boo, Dan Slater, Kutsal Yeşilkağıt, Ben Voth, Peter Preston, James Andrew Lewis, Greg Simons, Elizabeth Hoffman, Ted Goertzel, Jonathan Sullivan, Sarah Jeu, Weixiang Wang, Lucina Di Meco, Eliza Gheorghe, Dilan Ezgi Koç, Zsófia Bocskay, Abeer Kapoor, 2021-12-01. There is perhaps nothing more important than being able to communicate in politics. In this regard, political communication is crucial and it necessitates careful planning. A well-crafted message can influence public opinion. Effective politicians must have a compelling style, be able to connect with various constituencies, and be engaging. By applying strategic messaging, a politician can effectively convince an audience. Using social media in particular can have a profound impact on political communication. Engagement in politics is now becoming easier than ever before. Over the past two decades, social media has taken a central role in politics and institutions around the globe. As the spread of social media has led to easier political involvement, it has also fueled the rise of authoritarian and illiberal regimes in many countries. Therefore, it is important to study political communication and apply it to different situations carefully. We contacted our contributing authors from around the world and asked for their input. As Janet Steele writes in her article, Taliban spokesperson Zabihullah Mujahid shocked many when he declared that the Taliban would support free and independent media provided they followed Islamic law. She argues in her article that Western policymakers should take the Taliban's words seriously since they contain a set of powerful Islamic concepts likely to resonate with Muslim listeners around the world. Dan Slater and Jeremy Boo tell us that new information technologies impact authoritarian regimes and their social opponents in various ways. They combine recent academic literature in order to examine how social media and surveillance technology shape both opposition mobilization and authoritarian control in places like China, Iran, Russia, and

Singapore They identified four distinct dynamics of digitization Liberation Technology Digitized Transparency Digitized Diversion and Big Brother As noted by Kutsal Yesilkagit established liberal democracies around the globe face populism and the possibility of democratic backsliding The rise of populist parties has forced civil servants to face a fundamental dilemma Are they expected to serve their newly democratically elected officials even when they disagree with their illiberal ideologies Ben Voth considers ethics as a matter of political communication that has vexed human experimentation in politics since its inception According to him ethics in political communication is a necessity for ongoing consideration in all expert research on political communication to avoid important excesses of politics ranging from injustice to genocide A critical component for achieving ethical rather than unethical conduct in political communication is a careful praxis of discursive complexity Since the 21st century has intensified its attachment to vehicles of communication rooted in artificial intelligence expert practitioners need to enhance their pedagogy and research towards encouraging human dissent Peter Preston examines the idea of democracy in the European Union In his view the discussion of democracy in the European Union revolves around issues like parliaments parties party competition and competitive elections He also mentions the wider media environment The model he cites is primarily liberal There are criticisms however the central Brussels machinery lacks democratic legitimacy some recent member states from the former Soviet sphere are authoritarian and some established member states have prominent nationalist populist parties We invite you to learn more about what is shaping our world There is a number of other articles in this issue that determine the focus of the TPQ Journal I would like to thank many people for creating this issue for TPQ Journal and making it possible The list includes all contributing authors as well as many others who devoted a great deal of time and effort TPQ s team has worked hard to bring you this edition Many of the features in it are the results of the excellent work they have done
