

Energy Efficiency - Chapter 10 - Building Envelopes

1. What are the three main building parameters, interrelationships and dependencies between building envelope properties and how do they affect energy consumption? Building envelope properties and their interrelationships are discussed in section 10.1. Building envelope properties are:
 - U-value
 - Air permeability
 - Thermal mass
2. What is the effect of building energy flows on the energy performance of buildings? Section 10.2. Energy flows are:
 - Heating
 - Cooling
 - Ventilation
 - Internal gains
 - Solar gains
 - Heat losses
3. Why are wind and airflows important for the energy performance of buildings? Wind and airflows are important for the energy performance of buildings because they affect the heat transfer between the building and the outdoor environment. Wind can increase the heat loss from a building by increasing the convective heat transfer coefficient. Airflows can also affect the internal heat gains from people and equipment. Wind and airflows are important for the energy performance of buildings because:
 - They affect the heat transfer between the building and the outdoor environment.
 - They affect the internal heat gains from people and equipment.
4. How can we reduce heat losses from buildings? Heat losses from buildings can be reduced by:
 - Improving the building envelope (e.g. insulation, air sealing, double glazing).
 - Using energy-efficient heating systems (e.g. condensing boilers, heat pumps).
 - Using passive solar design (e.g. south-facing windows, thermal mass).
5. What are the main building envelope properties and how do they affect energy consumption? Building envelope properties are:
 - U-value
 - Air permeability
 - Thermal massThese properties affect energy consumption by:
 - Affecting the heat transfer between the building and the outdoor environment.
 - Affecting the internal heat gains from people and equipment.
6. Describe the main principles of sustainable design for buildings. Sustainable design for buildings is a process that aims to create buildings that are:
 - Energy efficient
 - Environmentally friendly
 - Socially responsible
 - Economically viableThe main principles of sustainable design for buildings are:
 - Minimizing energy consumption
 - Reducing greenhouse gas emissions
 - Improving indoor air quality
 - Using sustainable materials
 - Reducing waste
 - Improving water efficiency
7. What are the main building envelope properties and how do they affect energy consumption? Building envelope properties are:

Chapter 13 Reading Guide Answers:

Reading Actively in Middle Grade Social Studies Don K. Philpot, 2019-08-14 Middle grade students can learn a great deal about themselves and their world by reading informative texts in social studies courses. These texts will focus on important topics in history, geography, civics, government, and economics and offer students a range of perspectives on past and present social events. But reading is a complex act and most students need specific reading-related support to understand assigned texts in middle grade social studies courses. This book focuses on the cyclical nature of reading: the actions proficient readers engage in to understand social studies textbooks and other informational texts and the instructional support that teachers can provide to enhance middle grade students' learning of social studies content through reading. Three associated questions will be addressed in this book: What actions do proficient readers engage in to understand assigned course texts? What do these actions entail and how do they relate to each other? What teacher-mediated practices best support middle grade students' development as proficient readers and enhance their learning of course content through reading?
